

GreenTech Metals Lists on ASX

Highlights

- GreenTech Metals successfully raised $5m in its heavily oversubscribed IPO
- Artemis is GreenTech's largest shareholder with circa 15% of shares on issue and sees considerable upside potential given the compelling enterprise value of GreenTech.
- GreenTech has a portfolio of highly prospective battery/EV metals projects in Western Australia.
- Artemis looks forward to GreenTech's maiden drilling programme commencing soon at the Whundo Cu-Zn project followed by the Osborne Nickel joint-venture.

Artemis Resources Limited ("Artemis" or "the Company") (ASX:ARV, Frankfurt: ATY, US OTCQB: ARTTF) is pleased to advise shareholders that GreenTech Metals Limited ("GreenTech") (ASX:GRE) has today listed on ASX.

Artemis is GreenTech's largest shareholder (6,750,000 shares being ~15%), following the divestment on non-core projects, including the Whundo Copper-Zinc, Ruth Well Nickel, Weerianna and Nickol River projects. Additionally, Artemis retains exposure to the highly prospective Osborne Nickel prospect, where GreenTech has the ability to earn a 51% interest.

Alastair Clayton, Executive Director commented: "We are pleased to see GreenTech list on the ASX following their successful IPO raising, which was led by CPS Capital and strongly oversubscribed. With GreenTech expected to commence drilling at Whundo within the coming weeks, we see strong news flow across the portfolio in the short-term and throughout the year.

With drill programmes due to re-commence at Paterson Central and Greater Carlow soon Artemis has a very busy schedule for 2022. We are delighted to see the GreenTech team already driving exploration hard and we retain considerable exposure to the success of GreenTech, both as the company's largest shareholder and as a joint-venture partner".

For more information, please visit www.artemisresources.com.au

This announcement was approved for release by the Board.

For further information contact:

Alastair Clayton

Executive Director

alastair.clayton@artemisresources.com.au