

Combitech acquires Sörman Information

Combitech, a subsidiary of defence and security company Saab, is growing with the acquisition of consulting firm Sörman Information AB. The acquisition provides Combitech with a more complete range of services, benefitting the company's existing and prospective customers.

Combitech, a technical consultancy that is an independent subsidiary within the Saab Group, has signed an agreement to acquire Sörman Intressenter AB, parent company of Sörman Information AB (Sörman) – a consulting firm that provides services and solutions within qualified technical information management.

The acquisition is part of Combitech's strategy to expand its range of services and grow in the Nordic consultancy market. Following the acquisition of Sörman, Combitech will have an annual turnover of approx. SEK 1.1 billion and 1,100 employees.

"Managing and distributing information in today's complex systems is becoming increasingly important for many companies and public enterprises. With Sörman's services, we will have a more complete range of services, benefitting new and prospective customers. Moreover, the two companies are very much alike in terms of customers, market segments and local presence, which will provide economies of scale with regard to commitments and more complete deliveries," says Combitech's CEO Marie Bredberg.

"With Combitech, we gain a strong and stable owner and the space to develop our services and platforms within information management," says Hans Torin, CEO of Sörman.

The sellers include Investor Investments B.V., a company within Investor Growth Capital, part of Investor AB, with 39 percent of shares, and Saab AB with 25 percent of the shares. Investor AB holds 30 percent of capital and 39.5 percent of the votes in Saab AB.

The acquisition will come into force on 31 January 2012.
