MEDIA RELEASE

Safety checks carried out on winding ropes following South Deep accident

Johannesburg, 2 May 2008. Gold Fields Limited ("Gold Fields") (NYSE, JSE, DIFX: GFI) reports today that engineering and technical teams have been working during the night and will continue this morning to carry out safety checks on all winding ropes at all its mining operations in South Africa following the tragic shaft accident at South Deep gold mine yesterday in which nine people lost their lives.

The thorough testing of the winding ropes is expected to be completed by tomorrow, (Saturday). It follows a directive from the Department of Minerals and Energy (DME) that all winding was to cease until the integrity of all winding ropes had been assessed and found to be safe for winding purposes.

Although the directive, known as a Section 54, specifically mentioned Gold Fields' South Deep, Kloof, and Driefontein gold mines on the West Rand, winding ropes at the company's Beatrix mine in the Free State have also been examined.

Nick Holland, the CEO of Gold Fields said: "The safety of our people is paramount. We lost nine of our colleagues in yesterday's terrible accident. If we cannot mine safely, we will not mine. We will leave no stone unturned in our efforts to find the reason for the accident and will co-operate fully with the DME."
