AnnaCarin Grandin will leave the position as President and CEO of Coor

After more than four years as President and CEO, AnnaCarin Grandin will leave Coor to take on new challenges outside the company. The Board of Directors will now initiate the process of recruiting a successor. AnnaCarin Grandin will remain in her current position until a replacement is appointed or no later than 10 May 2025.

"AnnaCarin Grandin, who took over as CEO in connection with the pandemic is a skilled operational and appreciated leader, who has created growth and innovations and accelerated sustainability work at Coor. We have built a strong platform, and it is now time for the next phase in the company's journey. I would like to thank AnnaCarin for her commitment and for all the significant contributions made to Coor over many years in the company," commented Mats Granryd, Chairman of the Board.

"I'm very grateful and proud that I, along with all the fantastic employees, have been part of Coor's development journey for more than 20 years. Now it's time to hand over the baton to new forces that will continue to develop Coor and take commercial, social and environmental responsibility to maintain the position as the Nordic region's market-leading company in facility management," commented AnnaCarin Grandin, departing President and CEO of Coor.
