INVISIO enters into five-year framework agreement worth approximately SEK 275 million

INVISIO has entered into a five-year framework agreement where the end-customer is the Armed Forces of a European country. The contract, which is with the system integrator of the end-customer's vehicle modernization program, concerns Racal Acoustics' new CVC headset, the RA4000 Magna™ with accessories. The value is approximately SEK 275 million over the agreement period, but no volumes are guaranteed.

The agreement is part of the end-customer's ongoing modernization program of systems that enable effective communication in heavy vehicles.

The contract is a significant strategic success for the new digital RA4000 Magna™ Combat Vehicle Crewman (CVC) headset.

The agreement is not the first success for the new and highly advanced RA4000 Magna™ headset. Early in 2021 Racal Acoustics announced that they had signed a 7-year framework agreement for deliveries to the Danish army. The value of the first order from that agreement was USD 4.7 million.

"We are very pleased with the success of the new RA4000 Magna™ headset. There is no doubt that it is a market leading solution for high noise vehicle environments. We are now very much looking forward to addressing an array of ongoing and future modernization programs with this communication solution," says Lars Højgård Hansen, CEO of INVISIO.

It is worth noting that deliveries of Racal Acoustics branded products in general may lie further in the future than for products under the INVISIO brand. It is not unusual for the customer to request a first part-delivery within six months but not want the next delivery until 12-36 months later.

About the RA4000 Magna™ digital headset

The RA4000 Magna™ digital headset is Racal Acoustics' most recently developed product. It offers market-leading hearing protection, communication capability and situational awareness. The RA4000 Magna™ has modular, customizable, and upgradeable features and accessories, which makes it possible to meet specific customer requirements, while prolonging the life of the product.
