Sivers Semiconductors recruits new CFO

Sivers Semiconductors AB today announced that the company has recruited Håkan Rippe as new Chief Financial Officer (CFO) from September 20.

Håkan Rippe's career spans 27 years in both private equity-owned and listed technology companies. He has been part of several growth journeys and handled a significant number of acquisitions and capital market transactions. Håkan Rippe has previously held the role of CFO at Enea and Clavister as well as senior positions at IBM and Telelogic, among others.

"After moving to Nasdaq Stockholm's main list, we are now entering the next phase of our growth journey. Håkans Rippe's many years of experience as CFO from companies on the main list and from the stock market will be a strong addition to the company. Håkan has run many M&A transactions and been responsible for business development in the US for many years, which is a big plus", said Anders Storm, President and CEO of Sivers Semiconductors.

Håkan Rippe succeeds Robert Ejemark, who has been the CFO of Sivers Semiconductors for over three years.

"Robert has been instrumental in the company's move to Nasdaq's main list by creating a robust and sustainable long-term structure in the company. We want to thank Robert for a very good job over the years", said Anders Storm.

Håkan Rippe has recently at market price, acquired 375,000 shares in Sivers Semiconductors.
