Doro wins brand-infringement dispute in Poland

In a preliminary ruling, a Polish court have forbidden the Polish company TelForceOne from manufacturing, launching, importing, exporting or via any other channel, including the Internet, advertising mobile phones labeled DURO. The prohibition refers to mobile phones having keypads of the particular appearance which is similar to Doro designs. In addition, all phones labeled DURO are to be impounded.

Doro's President and CEO, Jérôme Arnaud comments: "I feel secure in knowing that our intangible rights are strongly protected and we will continue to defend them when needed. This is the third time this year that we have won cases against parties who have infringed upon these rights. Earlier this year, we won two injunctions in Germany with regard to design."
