Revised outlook for the 2022 financial year

During the latter part of the fourth quarter, the company's passenger operations have performed better than expected, which has improved the company's results. In the previous outlook, uncertainty factors such as the geopolitical situation and its impact on energy prices, inflation, interest rates and currencies have been cited as having a negative impact on the result. These have not had as strong an impact as previously feared.

Viking Line Abp assesses that the operating result for 2022 will be slightly better than 2021 and that the result before taxes is expected to be on par with 2021. The previous view was that operating income was expected to be somewhat worse than for 2021.
