Fire damage to Hartmann's factory in Denmark

On 10 May, a fire erupted at a section of Hartmann's factory in Denmark. The fire has been extinguished, and fire fighters have initiated mopping-up procedures. The fire has not entailed serious personal injuries.

Hartmann assesses the extent of the damages on the section of the factory in Denmark and will inform about potential operational and financial consequences as soon as possible. Hartmann has taken out an all risk insurance policy covering fire damage and consequential loss, cf. the section on risk in the annual report 2016.
