

Multiconsult's subsidiary LINK arkitektur wins a major contract for the new emergency hospital in Västerås

LINK arkitektur, in collaboration with Carlstedt Arkitekter as subcontractor, has signed a major contract with Region Västmanland for the architectural assignment of the 85,000 sqm new buildings at the new Västerås hospital in Sweden.

The contract value is currently estimated to approximately SEK 20 million to LINK arkitektur for the first phase. In addition, the contract includes options for the following phases. The first phase will begin immediately and last for one year. The following phases will last until approximately 2023.

In order to ensure the future of specialist healthcare in sustainable buildings, a completely new hospital building will be designed. The design will be made with active choices based on the patient as a central part in specialist care. The new hospital building will include, among other, emergency room, x-ray, surgery, sterile technology, intensive care, delivery, neonatal care, intervention, care units and clinics. In addition, a supply building is also planned - a prerequisite for being able to build and conduct care in the hospital area.

LINK Arkitektur is a leading Scandinavian architectural firm with 500 employees that is involved in large projects across Scandinavia. In Sweden, the company has been responsible for the large project at Södersjukhuset in Stockholm, is currently working with the new hospital area in Helsingborg, and has also designed the Skandion Clinic in Uppsala.

Carlstedt Arkitekter has long experience of large, complex hospital assignments throughout Sweden. Hospital architecture is the company's cutting-edge expertise.

LINK architecture has put together a strong team that combines the experience of complex buildings and large hospital projects with solid local knowledge.
