Arcadis mourns Supervisory Board member Armando Perez

(January 20, 2016) Arcadis (Euronext: arcad), the leading global Design & Consultancy firm for natural and built assets, today announced with great sadness that its Supervisory Board member Armando Perez passed away on January 17, 2016.

"Armando Perez was an active and knowledgeable board member who joined our Supervisory Board in 2009 after the acquisition of Malcolm Pirnie, the American water consultancy, where he was a non-executive director. From his former role he brought strong knowledge of the international water market to our team. He also had in depth knowledge and experience in Latin America and of the oil industry, important markets for Arcadis, having worked as a senior executive for ExxonMobil in that region. We will sorely miss Armando's keen interest in leadership development across Arcadis, his sharp analytical qualities, strong insights as well as his friendship and personal touch. On behalf of our Executive Board and Supervisory Board we are grateful for the time he dedicated to our firm. Our thoughts are with his family and friends," said Niek Hoek, Chairman of the Supervisory Board of Arcadis.
