

Qurius wins infrastructure and management contract at Dobotex International

25 June 2009 – After an extensive selection procedure, Dobotex International, part of sport and lifestyle company Puma, has selected Qurius to replace its complete IT infrastructure including management outsourcing and housing of the total solution. The contract value is around EUR 1 million.

Dobotex International is the exclusive licensing partner of various worldwide A-brands in fashion, sports and sport-lifestyle. In the fashion industry key success factors are not only design and quality, but excellent logistic processes are crucial as well. Therefore Dobotex needed an IT infrastructure with high availability and flexibility, since this is essential for the continuity of its business. Qurius proved to be the right IT partner for this versatile assignment considering its extensive experience with Microsoft Dynamics NAV, infrastructure, management and housing.

Theo Braks, Director Operations at Dobotex International: "Investing in a new IT infrastructure is for Dobotex the next step in assuring our continued growth. We are convinced that Qurius is a trustworthy partner for the design and realisation of the infrastructure as well as for the next phase, management and housing of our system."

Frank van der Woude, COO and Director Qurius the Netherlands: "For complex IT assignments with requirements in the field of infrastructure, software systems and management, Qurius offers one point of contact and a complete set of expertise. Which often proves to be crucial for the business continuity of our customers such as Dobotex."
