CONSOLIDATED GOLD WIN VENTURES INC. (CWG TSX-V) has acquired, by staking, 5 mineral claims near Drybones Bay, NWT. The contiguous claims, totalling approximately 13,000 acres are located 40 kilometres southeast of Yellowknife, NWT. and 12 kilometres north of the Drybones Bay diamondiferous kimberlites (DB-01 and DB-02) being explored by New Shoshoni Ventures Inc. (NSV – TSX-V). New Shoshoni has recently announced over 250 diamonds were recovered in the initial drilling on their newly discovered diamondiferous kimberlite pipe (DB-02 - NSV News release May 7th, 2003 and June 11th, 2003).

Consolidated Gold Win selected this ground acquisition based on the kimberlite exploration criteria that “geophysical magnetic anomalies coincident with small, circular-like lakes” are present in the area. The company is currently completing a program of data acquisition and interpretation with regards to the newly acquired claims and with respects to evaluating additional prospects for acquisition.

The Drybones Bay area is the first new diamondiferous kimberlite discovery area in the only producing Slave Craton geologic province of Canada that has been made in recent years.
