

Delic Labs Scientific Advisor Professor Glenn Sammis Receives Full Professorship at University of British Columbia

Professor Sammis takes sabbatical to devote significant time toward developing psilocybin and cannabis intellectual property (IP) for Delic Labs

VANCOUVER, BC, Aug. 10, 2021 /CNW/ - Delic Corp Inc. ("DELIC" or the "Company") (CSE: DELC) (OTCQB: DELCF), the leading psychedelic wellness platform, today announced Professor Glenn Sammis, Scientific Advisor of its subsidiary Delic Labs has been granted a full professorship at the University of British Columbia as a member of the Chemistry Department. Professor Sammis has further taken a twelve-month sabbatical from the University and will be devoting his time to working closely with Dr. Markus Roggen in developing intellectual property (IP) for Delic Labs' cannabis and psilocybin research. Delic Labs is a federally-authorized psilocybin and cannabis research laboratory focused on extraction, analytical testing, and chemical process development. Delic Labs serves as the engine for the DELIC platform, conducting research and developing innovative product lines and intellectual property (IP), including psilocybin vaporization technology for future distribution across the Company's physical footprint and licensed psychedelic wellness clinics in the United States.

"It is a great honor to earn a full-time professorship in chemistry with the University of British Columbia," said Delic Labs Scientific Advisor Professor Glenn Sammis. "I am excited to spend the coming months of my sabbatical conducting intensive research alongside Dr. Roggen as we build out valuable IP in the burgeoning cannabis and psychedelic medical spaces. Our unique and early testing of lesser-known compounds and practices will give us a first-mover advantage in the medical psychedelic space."

Founded by award-winning chemist, Dr. Markus Roggen, and UBC Professor, Dr. Glenn Sammis, DELIC Labs supports the psychedelic industry with high precision chemical analytics, metabolomic identification and process optimization. DELIC Labs is one of a handful of licensed psilocybin research labs in Canada and has an aggressive plan to build out a suite of novel compounds and delivery methods for the industry. DELIC Labs is also a leading cannabis analytical and research company boasting clients that include some of the largest brands in the world. DELIC Labs is applying for a Dealer's License, and intends to eventually commercialize its psilocybin research and associated intellectual property (IP).

Dr. Sammis started his chemical education at Stanford University, receiving B.Sc. in Chemistry with Honors and Distinction in 1999. He then joined Prof. Eric Jacobsen at Harvard University as an NSF Predoctoral fellow and obtained a Ph.D. in Chemistry in 2004. After, he moved to Princeton University for a two-year NIH postdoctoral fellowship with Prof. Erik Sorensen. Dr. Sammis is now a Full Professor at the Chemistry Department at the University of British Columbia. He has built an internationally recognized research group working on the development of novel synthetic methods for the preparation of natural products and pharmaceuticals.
