

TIO Networks Recognized as One of Canada's Most Innovative Public Tech Companies

CEO to present at CIX Public Investor Day, November 18, 2015 at MaRS Discovery District, Toronto, ON

TORONTO, Nov. 10, 2015 /CNW/ - TIO Networks Corp., (TSX-V: TNC) ("TIO"), North America's leading cloud-based bill payment processor, named one of Canada's 20 hottest and most innovative public tech companies by the Canadian Innovation Exchange (CIX).

The CIX selection committee determined this elite group of companies after evaluating all Canadian small and mid-cap publicly traded technology companies and rating them on their business model, depth of management, market opportunity, and quality of product or services.

"We are honoured to be recognized alongside some of Canada's most progressive companies who are leading innovation in both finance and technology," said Hamed Shahbazi, CEO of TIO Networks. "TIO prides itself on leveraging technology to provide underserved consumers in North America with access to high quality, safe and affordable last minute bill payment services."

TIO will present its strategy on how it's building significant scale in its transaction volumes and disrupting the US consumer bill payment market with its next-generation omni-channel experience. The conference is designed to connect small and mid-market Canadian public technology companies with the investment community.

Investors in the audience have the opportunity to message and pre-book meetings with the company CEOs through CIX's exclusive CONNECT software.
