Explanatory Notes to the Financial Statements

Accounting Principles and Valuation Criteria

The interim report for the third quarter of 2016, prepared in compliance with recognition and measurement criteria provided for in the IFRS endorsed by the European Union, was made available to the public in accordance with the requirements of Article 2.2.3 of Borsa Italiana S.p.A.'s Rules applicable to issuers that, as Brembo S.p.A., are listed in the STAR segment. The interim report includes the Statement of Financial Position, the Statement of Income, the Statement of Comprehensive Income, the Statement of Cash Flows, the Statement of Changes in Equity and brief Explanatory Notes.

Reference is made to the 2015 Financial Statements for the relevant international accounting standards and criteria adopted by the Group when preparing the above-mentioned Financial Statements. The preparation of the Interim Report requires management to make estimates and assumptions that have an effect on the amounts of recognised revenues, costs, assets and liabilities, and the disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities as of the reporting date. Should in the future such estimates and assumptions, which are based upon the management's best assessment, diverge from actual circumstances, they will be modified accordingly during the period in which such circumstances change.

It should also be noted that certain measurement processes, such as the determination of impairment for non-current assets, are typically carried out in full only during preparation of the Annual Financial Statements when all necessary information is available, unless impairment indicators require immediate analysis. It is also pointed out that the value of inventories has been calculated for Brembo S.p.A. by applying the cost of inventories at 31 May 2016 to the inventory accounting results at 30 September 2016. Actuarial valuations necessary to determine employee benefits are also typically performed during the preparation of the Annual Financial Statements. This Interim Report has not been audited.

Consolidation Area

The Financial Statements for the third quarter of 2016 include the financial statements of Brembo S.p.A., the Parent, and the financial statements of the companies that Brembo S.p.A. controls as per IFRS 10. Compared to the third quarter of 2015, the following corporate transactions were carried out:

- on 8 April 2016, the new company Brembo (Nanjing) Automobile Components Co. Ltd., with registered office in Nanjing, was formed. When fully operational, the company, which is wholly owned by Brembo S.p.A., will carry out casting, processing and assembly of brake systems for cars and commercial vehicles;
- on 19 May 2016, Brembo S.p.A. acquired a 66% stake in Asimco Meilian Braking Systems (Langfang) Co. Ltd., a Chinese company that owns a foundry and a plant for the manufacturing of cast-iron brake discs. This company supplies local car manufacturers, mainly including joint ventures among Chinese firms and European and U.S. top players. The remaining 34% of the share capital will continue to be owned by the public company Langfang Assets Operation Co. Ltd., controlled by the Municipality of Langfang.

Notes on the Most Significant Changes in Items of the Consolidated Financial Statements

Brembo's sales continued to perform well in the third quarter of 2016, once again confirming the Group's sales uptrend. In the third quarter of 2016, net sales amounted to €566,823 thousand, up by 11.1% compared to the same period of 2015 (+8.0% on a like-or-like consolidation basis, thus excluding the results of the newly acquired Asimco Meilian Braking Systems (Langfang) Co. Ltd. for the third quarter under review.

Nearly all applications contributed to revenue growth. The car applications sector closed the third quarter of 2016 with an increase of 13.3% compared to the same period of 2015. The motorbike applications sector and the racing sector recorded a good performance as well (12.5% and 3.4%, respectively), whereas the commercial vehicle applications sector remained stable (+0.5%).

Directors' Report on Operations and Significant Events

Macroeconomic Context

In order to properly assess Brembo's performance for the third quarter of 2016, the worldwide macroeconomic scenario should be taken into consideration, with particular reference to the increasing number of markets in which the Group operates.

According to October 2016 World Economic Outlook estimates published by the International Monetary Fund (IMF), world Gross Domestic Product (GDP) should grow by 3.1% in 2016 and 3.4% in 2017. The estimates, revised downwards by 0.1 percentage points compared to April, reflect the economic uncertainty caused by June's Brexit referendum and weaker-than-forecast economic growth in the United States in the first half of the year. Despite the fact that the financial market's negative reaction to the UK referendum has been contained, economic, political and institutional uncertainty is growing and IMF economists report that the likely decrease in financial and economic flows between the UK and Europe in the medium-long term will have negative macroeconomic effects, particularly as regards the United Kingdom. For this reason, growth in the advanced economies has been revised downwards by 0.3 percentage points compared to April, and now stands at 1.6% for 2016 and 1.8% for 2017. The most significant figure reported by the IMF is the growth forecast for the United States at the end of 2016 (1.6%), which was revised downwards by almost one percentage point from the April's Outlook figure.

As far as the Eurozone is concerned the IMF revised growth forecasts upwards by 0.2 percentage points for 2016 (+1.7%) whilst for 2017 there has been a 0.2 percentage points downward revision compared to the April's Outlook figure, hence a 1.5% growth rate. This was probably influenced by the United Kingdom's 2017 year-end forecast which has been revised downwards by more than one percentage point. The Purchasing Managers Index prepared by Markit Economics for September has indicated 52.6, down compared to 52.9 in August. The average index for the entire third quarter (52.9) has been the weakest since the last quarter of 2014. France is the only country to have reported acceleration (a high of 52.7 over 15 months). The Markit Economics experts assert that the slowdown in the region's growth rate reflects the increasingly cautious stance of companies, particularly in terms of purchasing, given the economic uncertainties caused by political instability.

At national level, Italy's growth at the end of 2016 has been revised downwards by 0.2 percentage points compared to June and by 0.6 percentage points for 2017. This was reported in September's Economic Outlook published by the OECD. According to ISTAT data, during August Italian factories recorded growth of 1.7% over the previous month and 4.1% over 2015, the highest in the last five years, driven by automotive industry. However, the ISTAT note states that "This growth is the result of variations recorded in a month typically marked by very low production levels". According to Eurostat, August industrial production in the Eurozone rose by 1.6% on a monthly basis and 1.8% on an annual basis, thanks particularly to increased production of durable goods (+4.9%).

As far as employment is concerned, the weighted unemployment rate published by Eurostat has remained stable within the Eurozone at 10.1% since July 2016, down 0.5 percentage points compared to the previous year. Youth unemployment also dropped compared to the previous year, going from 22.3% to 20.7% within the Eurozone. Positive data were also confirmed by the Bank of Italy in the October 2016 Bulletin, which stated that the number of people employed in Italy continued to rise at a steady rate in the second quarter (0.5% compared to the previous period). Nonetheless, the unemployment rate remains stable at 11.5%, due to increased participation in the labour market and the youth unemployment rate remains the third highest in Europe (38.8%), topped only by Spain (43.2%) and Greece (47.7%).

With regard to the American situation, GDP increased by 1.4% in the second quarter, faster than in the previous period (0.8%). At the end of 2016, GDP will grow by 1.6% and then accelerate in 2017 to 2.2%, despite the fact that both forecasts have been revised downwards. This phenomenon can be explained by the underestimated growth in the United States in the last quarters and the lack of economic impetus in the second quarter of 2016. Consumption growth remains strong, supported by a stable labour market and expansive wage policy. In fact, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics the unemployment rate is up by 0.1 percentage points compared to the previous month and now stands at 5%. The Federal Reserve has reported that industrial production in September increased by 0.1%, after a 0.5% reduction in August. On an annual basis, industrial production has risen by 1.8% since the third quarter of 2015. Plant capacity utilisation rose by 0.1 percentage points in September, reaching 75.4%. In addition, production in the manufacturing sector reported an increase of 0.2% in September, recording an annual growth rate of 0.9% in the third quarter.

According to the Bank of Italy's Bulletin, in Japan GDP decelerated significantly in the second quarter (from 2.1% to 0.7%), reflecting the slowdown in private consumption and the decline in exports. Despite the uncertainties of country's economy scenario, at the end of the current year and during 2017, it should benefit from the budgetary stimulus package recently approved by the government, totalling about 1.5% of GDP.

The IMF has reported that growth in China remained stable in the second quarter (6.7% compared to the same quarter of the previous year), continuing to benefit from the credit expansion and increase in infrastructure spending; however, investments slowed in the summer months, whilst industrial activity and retail sales have continued to increase at high rates.

Brazil's economy remains in recession, but the outlook is positive since the experts state that the effects of the economic and political shocks that marked 2015 will soften in the last few months of 2016. In fact, the estimates have been revised upwards by half a percentage point both for 2016 (which does, however, continue to show negative growth of -3.3%) and for 2017 (+0.5%).

As concerns commodities trends, the average price has increased gradually since February 2016. According to the figures published by the IMF, the arithmetic mean of the prices of the three Brent, Dubai and West Texas Intermediate (WTI) qualities decreased to $42.96 a barrel (-15.4%) and is expected to reach $50.64 a barrel in 2017.

Currency Markets

In the third quarter of 2016, the U.S. dollar fluctuated, first appreciating against the euro to 1.0982 on 25 July, to then fall back to 1.1339 (23 August). At the end of the period the currency stood at 1.1161, in line with the average for the period (1.116412).

Regarding the currencies of the other main markets in which Brembo operates at industrial and commercial level, the pound sterling, after an initial appreciation against the euro, that led it to 0.83275 on 15 July, depreciated until the first half of August. In the remaining part of the month it then appreciated again and, finally, reversed its trend to reach 0.8709 on 26 September. At the end of the quarter, the currency stood at 0.86103, above the average rate for the period (0.849514).

The Polish zloty opened the quarter at 4.4562 (6 July) and then significantly appreciated reaching 4.2604 on 11 August. The trend then reversed, with the zloty depreciating against the euro and recovering again at period-end. At the end of the period the currency stood at 4.3192, below the average rate for the period (4.339181).

The Czech koruna, which opened the quarter at 27.095 (4 July), constantly appreciated against the euro reaching 27.014 in the second half of the month (19 July). Since August, it has continued to appreciate against the euro at a virtually constant rate, allowing the currency to move sideways until the period-end to 27.021, a value in line with the average for the period (27.029517).

The Swedish krona opened the quarter at 9.39 (1 July) and then fluctuated between phases of appreciation and depreciation until September, a month during which the depreciation of the Swedish currency against euro continued reaching 9.6218 (29 September). At the end of the period the currency stood at 9.621, above the average rate for the period (9.510331).

In the Far East, the Japanese yen opened the reporting period up against the euro reaching 111.17 (8 July) and then lost ground reaching 117.88 (14 July). Subsequently, the currency continued to fluctuate sideways, alternating between periods of appreciation and loss in value, pending action by the Bank of Japan and in view of new government measures. At the end of the period, the currency stood at 113.09, below the average rate for the period (114.318524).

The Chinese yuan/renminbi, which opened the quarter up against the euro reaching 7.3311 (27 July), fell in the first half of August reaching 7.5341 (19 August). Since that time and until the end of the reporting period, the currency moved sideways with periods of appreciation followed by losses of ground, remaining at a higher level than the average for the period (7.4422). The closing rate was 7.4463.

The Indian rupee also confirms the fluctuating trend against the euro that marked the Asian currencies during the third quarter of 2016. The currency opened the reporting period up against the euro reaching 73.87 (27 July), subsequently losing ground to reach 76.085 on 19 August. Since that time it recovered its value against the euro and then depreciated again in September. At the end of the period the currency stood at 74.3655, below the average rate for the period (74.742043).

In the Americas, the Brazilian real moved sideways in July and then appreciated until it reached 3.4911 on 10 August. It again lost value fairly steadily until reaching 3.7439 on 15 September. Towards the end of the reporting period, the Brazilian currency again reversed its trend closing at 3.621, a value in line with the average for the period (3.622712).

The Mexican peso, which opened the reporting period at 20.1814 (1 July), depreciated overall against the euro, culminating on 26 September at 22.3599. At the end of the period, the currency stood at 21.7389, above the average rate for the period (20.920743).

The Argentine peso opened the quarter appreciating against the euro to 16.132319 (13 July) and then moved sideways depreciating steadily reaching 17.248467 (29 September). At the end of the period, the currency stood at 17.0221, above the average rate for the period (16.682265).

Finally, the Russian rouble, after initially appreciating to 69.5272 (19 July), reversed its trend losing ground against the euro down to 74.5458 on 3 August. It then experienced periods of appreciation and loss of value. Since mid-September, the Russian currency has recovered value closing at 70.514, below the average for the period (72.091886).

Operating Structure and Reference Markets

In the third quarter of 2016, Brembo's consolidated net sales amounted to €566,823 thousand, up by 11.1% compared to the same period of 2015 (€510,201 thousand).

Information on the performance of the individual applications and their related markets — as available to the company at the reporting date — is provided under the following headings.

Cars

During the third quarter of 2016, the global light vehicles market showed a 6.8% increase in sales compared to the same period of 2015, mainly driven by the Chinese and Western European markets.

The Western European market (EU15+EFTA) continued to show positive signs, closing the third quarter of 2016 with car registrations at +3.9% compared to the same period of 2015. Among the main markets, a contribution to growth came from Germany (+4.2%), the United Kingdom (+1.4%), Italy (+12.8%) and Spain (+9.7%), while France closed the quarter with a negative sign (-1.0%). The trend was also positive in Eastern Europe (EU12), with a 14.4% increase in car registrations compared to the third quarter of the previous year.

By contrast, the downtrend in light vehicle registrations that began in 2013 in Russia continued and sales dropped by 15.1% in the third quarter of 2016 compared to the same period of the previous year. The Russian light vehicles market reflects the economic and political crisis in the country, where the severe depreciation of the rouble and high inflation and interest rates have brought the consumer confidence index to its lowest level since 2009.

In the United States, the third quarter of 2016 showed negative results, with light vehicle sales decreasing by 1.4% overall, compared to the same period of 2015.

The Brazil's negative trend that began in 2014 continued, leading to an overall sales decline of 17.0% for the third quarter of 2016.
