5. Full Description of Material Change

On February 22, 2007 OneMove Technologies ("OneMove") joined forces with one of England's fastest growing real estate software providers to offer end-to-end services for as many as 300,000 house hunters.

The breakthrough agreement with WebSky Ltd., of London will create an advanced web-based technology giving real estate agents, house sellers and buyers, landlords and tenants the best possible administration system software available.

WebSky has a sophisticated software program to manage real estate offices. It currently services 600 real estate offices in England and Wales.

OneMove developed a software program that gives innovative and comprehensive service to frequently beleaguered homebuyers there.

The agreement sets out a three-year working relationship where OneMove can offer the WebSky's software to its growing network of realtors on a discounted basis. It provides OneMove exclusive access to provide conveyancing services to the 5,000 offers that are processed by WebSky each month along with the 300,000 plus house hunters and 25,000 listed properties that the British firm's software holds at any one time.

Real estate transactions take an extraordinary amount of time to complete in England and Wales and many collapse. That leaves homebuyers footing bills for transaction fees, such as home inspections and other services.

OneMove's British subsidiary makes home buying simpler by removing the stress and providing buyers and sellers with all the services they will need, such as lawyers, mortgage lenders and furniture movers.

OneMove's software technology is called Move Management System. WebSky's software management is called Expert Agent.
