

CRH Medical Corporation and WovenX Announce Strategic Partnership to Advance GI Patient Access and Streamline Care Delivery

Collaboration merges clinical and operational expertise with virtual-first innovation to eliminate barriers to GI care.

ATLANTA & CHICAGO--(BUSINESS WIRE)--June 10, 2025--CRH Medical Corporation (“CRH”), a leading provider of products and services for gastrointestinal (GI) providers and a wholly owned subsidiary of WELL Health Technologies Corp. (“WELL”), has announced a strategic partnership with WovenX Health (“WovenX”), a leader in integrated virtual specialty care. Together, they aim to deliver integrated, next-generation GI practice solutions designed to resolve persistent challenges surrounding patient access and operational capacity.

This collaboration merges CRH’s clinically validated GI solutions with WovenX’s advanced virtual visit platform to create a scalable framework that enhances operational performance, expands patient access, and elevates care delivery across the GI community. WovenX’s on-demand service offering enables practices to increase appointment availability, unlocks underutilized capacity in high-value procedural areas, streamline workflows, and deliver timely, patient-centered care at the speed of need.

“Partnering with WovenX Health lets GI practices deliver technology-enabled, guideline-based care in minutes rather than months,” said Russ Arjal MD, AGAF, Co-Founder and Chief Medical Officer at WovenX . “Patients consistently praise the experience, and our Net Promoter Score ranks among the highest in healthcare. This approach enables practices to unlock new growth opportunities and capture meaningful downstream revenue. We are excited to partner with CRH to deepen our impact and expand our presence within the GI community.”

Together, WovenX and CRH are addressing long-standing barriers to access and efficiency, offering providers a cohesive and consumer-centric model for GI care.

“This partnership represents a strategic extension of the solutions we’re already delivering to our GI physician customers, amplifying the value of our collaborative approach,” said Jay Kreger, CEO of CRH Medical Corporation. “By combining CRH’s GI expertise and network with WovenX’s intelligent platform, we’re equipping practices with the tools they need to improve patient access and outcomes, raise standards of care, and drive meaningful, long-term transformation in care delivery.”
