

DIRTT Reports February Commercial Activity Amid Evolving Construction Planning Environment

CALGARY, Alberta, March 24, 2026 -- DIRTT Environmental Solutions Ltd. ("DIRTT", the "Company", "we", "our", "us" or "ours") (TSX: DRT; OTCQX: DRTTF), a leader in industrialized construction, today reported strong early-year project activity as organizations increasingly evaluate faster and more adaptable approaches to interior construction.

February activity included projects with organizations such as LinkedIn and Ohio State University Medical Center, along with continued engagement with returning customers. Additional clients included Service Corporation International, CPP Investments, and Canada Packers, reflecting ongoing commercial engagement across multiple industries.

"Customers continue to advance projects as they adapt their spaces to evolving operational needs," said Benjamin Urban, CEO of DIRTT. "We're seeing organizations prioritizing projects that can be delivered with greater certainty and minimal disruption, which is where our approach to industrialized construction continues to resonate."

Recent industry indicators suggest that nonresidential construction planning remains elevated year-over-year, according to the Dodge Momentum Index. While planning activity moderated modestly month-over-month early in 2026, overall planning levels remain significantly higher than a year ago.

Against this backdrop, DIRTT continues to see customers evaluating and advancing projects that benefit from the speed, flexibility and certainty enabled by its technology-enabled manufacturing capabilities.
