BioNxt Signs Letter Agreement to Acquire 100% Interest in IP and to Codevelop a Sublingual Drug Formulation for Chemotherapy and Immunosuppressant Treatments

Vancouver, Canada (December 1, 2025) – BioNxt Solutions Inc. ("BioNxt" or the "Company") (CSE: BNXT / OTC: XPHYF / FSE: 4XT), a bioscience innovator specializing in advanced drug delivery systems, is pleased to announce it has signed a letter agreement with a European-based chemotherapy company (the "Codeveloper") for the exclusive intellectual property rights to a novel sublingual drug formulation using a high-potency active pharmaceutical ingredient for oncology and immunosuppressant treatments.

BioNxt and the Codeveloper will work together to plan and manage the project, including prototype development, IP filings, preclinical and clinical studies, and regulatory filings. 100% of intellectual property rights will be assigned to BioNxt and the Codeveloper will receive a 20% royalty on license fees paid to BioNxt from third-party licensees, capped at USD 50,000,000 in aggregate royalty payments. BioNxt and the Codeveloper are working toward a definitive IP and Collaboration agreement to be signed in the next 60 days.

"This chemotherapy and immunosuppressant product opportunity is an excellent complement to our lead development program, which is a sublingual thin-film formulation of cladribine for multiple sclerosis," said Hugh Rogers, CEO of BioNxt Solutions. "We expect to file provisional patents for our new sublingual product by year-end, which will expand our growing intellectual property portfolio and product pipeline."

The immunosuppressant market is growing rapidly due to a surge in organ transplants and autoimmune disorders. Statista estimates that the global market for immunosuppressants will reach USD 61.05 billion in 2025.
