The term of the JV Agreement is 20 years, with a 2-year automatic renewal thereafter, unless the JV Agreement is earlier terminated. A party whose interest is diluted to less than 10% will have its interest converted to a 2.0% net smelter return royalty.

The Cordillera Cobre Property is located in the Atacama Region of the Republic of Chile, approximately 43 km east – northeast of the industrial city of Copiapó, which is approximately 450 km north of the capital city of Santiago. The property is comprised of 27 exploitation concessions in application forming a single block of approximately 7,430 hectares. The applications are pending regulatory approval required to certify the mining concessions.

Super Copper Corp.
Management's Discussion and Analysis
For the three months ended May 31, 2025

Of the 27 concessions, all are currently in the application process, and all are applied for as exploitation licenses under Gareste. The property is surrounded by a number of copper occurrences and historical inactive and active small mines. The most significant of these are Farellones, which lies in the northern side of the Property; Resguardo, which is active and located approximately 2.5 km to the northeast; Las Rosas/Mariela, which is active and lies 200 m to the north; Conveniencia, which is intermittently active and is located on the eastern edge of Cordillera; the past producing Venado Sur mine, located approximately 2.5 km to the southwest; Venado Norte, which is inactive and lies 2.7 km to the east; and Mina Dulcinea, approximately 13 km to the northwest.

Historical sampling of various rock and soil media has identified the existence of copper oxides, native copper, and, in some cases, sulphide copper on the property. Additional grid sampling, prospect pit sampling, and preliminary geologic mapping indicated several areas worthy of follow up examination.

Copper mineralization at the property occurs as mostly oxide copper in faults and shear zones, which may be stratabound, and as native copper with attendant oxides as disseminations, fracture fillings, and matrix fillings in coarse volcanoclastic rocks, flow top breccias, and andesitic agglomerates. After review of the mineral occurrences at the property, and confirmation of reported sample grades, it was recommended that the Company continue exploration and evaluation of the mineral potential of the property. The budget for such recommended exploration was estimated at approximately $125,000 for the Stage 1 exploration program. A Stage 2 exploration program that includes drilling has been outlined for $1,125,000.

On February 18, 2025, the Company announced the results of its Stage 1 field program at the Cordillera Cobre Property. Selective rock grab and character sampling was conducted across the property testing a number of copper-silver mineralized zones, favourable structures and favourable lithologies to begin the assessment of grade and continuity at a number of these zones. The program returned multiple high-grade copper assays, with 46 out of 122 rock grab samples exceeding 1% Cu, including peak values up to 10.3% Cu and 296 g/t Ag. The next steps will focus on geophysics and drilling to define continuity and unlock the full potential of what the Company believes could be a significant copper discovery in one of the world's most productive mining regions.

On June 10, 2025, the Company announced its Phase 2 exploration program at the Cordillera Cobre Property. Phase 2 is designed to advance the Company's understanding of its highest-priority copper targets and establish a data-driven foundation for an inaugural drill program. The program includes detailed ground geophysical surveys, sampling of historical core, and systematic channel sampling across key mineralized zones. The Company has identified the primary target areas for the Phase 2 work to be El Alto and Calcite Hill. These areas returned consistent high-grade copper values and feature visible oxide mineralization, including malachite, tenorite, chalcocite, and bornite, with potential for sulfide mineralization at depth. The Company also identified legacy mine workings and underground shafts, including those at Mina Anima, as well as historical drill collars and available core at El Alto, which will be verified and re-sampled as part of the Phase 2 program. A few secondary targets that returned high grade copper values such as the Copper Tuffs and Eastern Mine may also see follow-up sampling during the Phase 2 program.

Upon completion of Phase 2 and subject to the Company obtaining additional financing, the Company aims to launch a Phase 3 program focused on drilling high-priority targets identified through the current work provided Phase 2 results warrant further exploration. The northwest portion of the property remains underexplored and will be further assessed for future expansion potential.

The Company's objectives when managing capital are to safeguard its ability to continue as a going concern in order to provide returns for shareholders and to maintain a flexible capital structure that optimizes the costs of capital within a framework of acceptable risk. In the management of capital, the Company includes the components of shareholders' equity as well as cash. The Company manages the capital structure and makes adjustments to it in light of changes in economic conditions and the risk characteristics of the underlying assets. To maintain or adjust its capital structure, the Company may issue new shares, issue debt, acquire or dispose of assets or adjust the amount of cash. The Company is dependent on the capital markets as its primary source of operating working capital and the Company's capital resources are largely determined by its ability to compete for investor support of its projects.

Super Copper is in the exploration stage and is subject to risks and challenges similar to companies in a comparable stage. These risks include, but are not limited to, the challenges of securing adequate capital in view of exploration, development and operational risks inherent in the mining industry; changes in government policies and regulations; the ability to obtain the necessary environmental permitting; challenges in future profitable production; as well as global economic, precious and base metal price volatility; all of which are uncertain.

The condensed interim consolidated financial statements have been prepared assuming the Company will continue as a going concern, which contemplates the realization of assets and satisfaction of liabilities in the normal course of business. At May 31, 2025, the Company had accumulated losses of $3,771,126 since its inception and expects to incur further losses in the development of its business. The continuation of the Company is dependent upon obtaining necessary financing to meet its ongoing operational levels of exploration and corporate overhead. There is a material uncertainty related to these conditions that may cast significant doubt upon the Company's ability to continue as a going concern. Additional funds will be required to enable the Company to continue its operations and there can be no assurance that financing will be available on terms which are acceptable to the Company. The condensed interim consolidated financial statements do not give effect to any adjustments to the amounts and classifications of assets and liabilities which might be necessary should the Company be unable to continue its operations as a going concern.
