Investment objective

Schroder Asian Total Return Investment Company plc (formerly Asian Total Return Investment Company plc) seeks to provide a high rate of total return through investment in equities and equity related securities of companies trading in the Asia Pacific region (excluding Japan). The Company seeks to offer a degree of capital preservation through tactical use of derivative instruments.

Investment policy

The Company will invest principally in a diversified portfolio of 40-70 companies operating primarily in Asia, including Australasia but excluding Japan. It is intended that the Company will have a bias to investing in small and mid cap companies.

Investments may be made in companies listed on the stock markets of countries located in the region and/or listed elsewhere but controlled from within the region and/or with a material exposure to the region. The Company will focus on investing in companies with sound balance sheets, professional management and capital allocation policies that are aligned with the interests of minority shareholders.

The use of derivatives to protect the capital value of the portfolio or for efficient portfolio management is fundamental to the strategy of the Company's portfolio managers. Such derivatives may include listed futures, call options, long puts, OTC instruments and instruments to hedge currency exposure. The Board will monitor the effectiveness of the underlying process and the use of derivatives.

In order to obtain further exposure to equity indices or individual stocks, the Company may enter into contracts for difference where the underlying investments are not delivered and settlement is made in cash. In extreme circumstances, and subject to Board approval, the majority, or even all, of the Company's assets could be held in cash or near cash instruments, with appropriate diversification of cash held on deposit.

The Company may use gearing to enhance performance but net gearing will not exceed 30% of net asset value.

The Company does not tie its portfolio construction to the constituents of any benchmark; instead, the size of stock positions are set on an absolute basis reflecting where the best potential risk adjusted returns are to be found.

Performance

During the six months to 30 June 2016, the Company produced a net asset value (“NAV”) total return of 15.8%, outperforming both the Reference Index, which produced a total return of 12.9%, and the peer group average NAV total return of 14.5%. If this level of performance continues, a performance fee will be payable for the year ending 31 December 2016, with management fees as a whole capped at 2% of the Company’s net asset value at the year end.

Much of the absolute return came from a sharp weakening of sterling after the EU referendum, rather than strong performance from Asian markets, which were mostly flat in local currency terms. However, it is pleasing to report that the portfolio, which had previously outperformed when the market slumped, continued to outperform the market. Relative performance during the period benefited from a strong contribution from technology stocks, leading internet players in China and holdings in Australia.

Further details on performance may be found in the Portfolio Managers’ Review.

Promotion and discount management

The Board remains focused on promotion of the Company’s shares based on the distinctive characteristics of the Company’s strategy and the differentiation of the opportunities offered by the Company from those offered by its peer group.

The discount management policy continues to target a discount to net asset value of 5% in normal market conditions, using the Company’s share buyback authority when required. In the six months to 30 June 2016, the average discount to NAV was 6.5% (7.9% on a cum income basis compared with an average 10.9% for the peer group).

Change of name

Following discussions with our advisers, and in view of the market awareness of the Manager’s brand and the benefits which that brand can offer the Company when promoting its shares, the Board has decided to change the name of the Company and, with effect from 21 September 2016, it became known as Schroder Asian Total Return Investment Company plc.

Gearing and the use of derivatives

The portfolio managers continued to use gearing during the period and at 30 June 2016, net gearing stood at 5.1%. Gearing will not exceed 30% of net asset value. The Board has agreed a disciplined framework for gearing, based on valuation indicators.

General Meeting

The Board is making a number of recommendations to shareholders in relation to the Company’s Articles of Association, including the introduction of a cap on Directors’ fees for the first time, and is also seeking changes to the parameters for the reissue of shares from Treasury. Proposals will be made at a General Meeting to be held on 15 November 2016. A Circular outlining the changes will be mailed to those who have requested printed copies of all documents released by the Company and will be made available on the Company’s webpage.

Interim Management Report – Chairman's Statement

Outlook

In the current environment, we expect our portfolio managers to realise profits in overpriced holdings in order to target stocks which have lagged the market and which bear attractive and sustainable yields. Should markets rise from current levels the Board would also encourage the use of capital protection strategies in view of the portfolio managers' current views on valuations.

Performance analysis

Most Asian equity markets ended the first half of the year close to where they began. Stock markets got off to a turbulent start following the devaluation in the Chinese currency and fears of a Chinese hard landing; however Asian markets then recovered on the back of reassuring comments from the US Federal Reserve and a rebound in oil prices. Flat local currency returns were turned into a strong gain for UK investors following the sharp fall in sterling after the UK's EU referendum, with the Company's reference index – the MSCI AC Asia Pacific ex-Japan Index – returning 12.9% in sterling terms (source: Thomson Reuters).

Within the region, the ASEAN markets were the biggest outperformers as stabilising currencies and hopes of reforms in Indonesia and the Philippines led to a strong recovery. The Chinese stock market was the laggard as concerns over economic growth and worries over rising bad debts continued to weigh on sentiment. There was high dispersion in performance across sectors, with Energy and Materials leading gains driven by higher commodity prices. Financials on the other hand came under pressure on the back of general weakness across insurance and bank stocks, due to concerns about a deteriorating credit cycle and the negative impact on margins of continued unconventional monetary policy.

Against this backdrop, the portfolio delivered an NAV return of 15.8% in sterling terms (source: Morningstar) in the first half. Performance was driven by a strong contribution from technology holdings, in particular smartphone components and supply chain stocks in Taiwan and China on hopes of a pick-up in demand. Korean IT conglomerate Samsung Electronics also extended its positive momentum on signs of a turnaround in earnings driven by stabilising margins in its mobile handset division. In the internet space, China's leading players Tencent and Alibaba outperformed as earnings continued to deliver steady growth on the back of long-term growth opportunities in the e-commerce and online advertising business.

Positive contributions also came from the Australian holdings, with logistics and healthcare names advancing on solid corporate results. Amongst the top contributors was Medibank, a private health insurer, which surged following news that it received government approval for a premium increase. Elsewhere, most ASEAN stocks saw broad-based gains amid improving sentiment, with Thai financials leading gains on expectations of a stabilising macro environment.

Amongst the detractors, export-oriented companies saw sluggish returns. Automotive component supplier Johnson Electric, bicycle manufacturers Merida Industry and Giant Manufacturing, as well as textile companies Pacific Textile and Shenzhou International fell on concerns over a slower global demand backdrop. Hong Kong-based conglomerate CK Hutchison was also down on worries over its UK business exposure post-Brexit.

The portfolio was slightly geared at 5.1% with total equity exposure of 104.7% at the end of June. Gearing was used to purchase high-yielding telecom stocks and REITs, which added to returns over the period. The contribution from capital protection (in the form of put options on the Australian, Korean and Taiwan markets and short futures on the Hong Kong, China H-shares and Singapore indices) was small given the flat markets, while the currency hedge on the Australian dollar pared some gains as the currency appreciated on the back of higher commodity prices. Adjusting for the derivative protection, net exposure was approximately 85% (93.3% delta-adjusted) at the end of June.

Outlook

The earnings backdrop for Asian companies continues to look challenging. Falling interest rates in Asia are squeezing net interest margins for banks and insurance companies at a time where non-performing loans are rising across the region after the strong credit cycle since 2010. On the export front, we find it hard to expect a sustained improvement in export demand from Europe, the largest export region for Asian goods and services, given the continued sluggish economic backdrop. We are slightly more sanguine on domestic demand in Asia. Whilst we do not expect a major pick-up, some stabilization and improvement is possible in India, Indonesia and the Philippines where there has been better policy follow-through and where the impact on the agricultural sector of last year's El Nino will wane.

We have pared down most of the portfolio's exposure in ASEAN as valuations are now high compared to recent history. We see few structural improvements to justify the recent major re-rating and we think the valuation premium is down to an 'anything but China' mentality. We increasingly question the competitive advantage of the region, and without better government, we think ASEAN may well be stuck in a low-growth rut.

The portfolio is now mostly focused in Australia, Hong Kong, China, Taiwan and India. With the exception of India, the holdings are principally concentrated on names that offer attractive dividend yields, such as telecom stocks and Hong Kong property investors, or that we think have good niches with potential to grow globally, e.g. China/Hong Kong exporters, Taiwan technology and Australian healthcare. The only significant domestic consumption plays are Chinese internet names, the Jardine group, and the Indian banks and consumer stocks which we are still comfortable to hold despite high valuations, given these are amongst the only good structural demand stories in Asia.

Conclusion

Overall we think little has changed, and with Asian valuations looking expensive relative to history, we are inclined to lock in profits on some of the more cyclical holdings and put the proceeds into a few laggards, particularly where we can find attractive and sustainable yields. Further price rises from current levels will also see us add to capital protection if pricing is attractive, given the lack of fundamental underpinning for further market rallies.
