aurionPro SENA announces the appointment of Ed Jackowskiak as Vice President of Sales for North America

Edison, NJ – April 29, 2013 (Marketwire)

aurionPro SENA, a gold-level Oracle partner, is pleased to announce that Ed Jackowskiak has joined its leadership team as Vice President of Sales, North America.

Arriving to aurionPro SENA with more than 23 years of experience, Ed has demonstrated an incredibly successful track record in revenue growth and executive leadership. Most recently, he held the position of Vice President of Worldwide Sales at Vordel Inc. In this role, Ed dramatically increased sales across both software and professional services and was a key driver in the successful sale of the company. Prior to Vordel, Ed was Vice President of Worldwide Sales at Bridgestream where he built the company into the dominant player in the emerging market of role based access control (RBAC) and role mining. After Bridgestream was acquired by Oracle, Ed assumed responsibility for building and growing revenues for Oracle's North American security, identity, and access management group. Prior to Bridgestream, Ed held various Management and Executive roles at Kavado, Netegrity, and Segue Software.

"Ed not only has an outstanding record in sales and business development, but he is also an expert across our core competencies. We're extremely excited that he is joining our team as he will certainly be a key component to our continued growth in North America," said Robert Levine, CEO of Aurionpro, North America.

Along with driving sales for aurionPro SENA, North America, Ed will lead all business development efforts in order to expand the team's presence and suite of offerings. Such activities are expected to include developing the network of complementary software and consulting partners, expanding the portfolio of service offerings and product assets, and increasing visibility through a variety of lead generation and marketing initiatives. Wayne Delisser and Josh Bregman, both of whom previously worked with Ed at Vordel, will be simultaneously joining aurionPro SENA's North American Sales team in order to immediately extend the reach of its business development capabilities.

Commenting on the new appointment, Ed remarked, "During my years of observing aurionPro SENA in the marketplace, I have been consistently impressed with their depth of expertise, commitment to deliver successful projects, and integrity and unity of the leadership team, which I am so pleased to be joining."
