Electronics India gets notice for 'damaging' trees on Sardar Patel Marg

MM BUREAU

New Delhi/July 03

The New Delhi Municipal Council (NDMC) has issued a show-cause notice to the Electronics Corporation of India Limited (ECIL) to "explain" any potential damage caused to trees on Sardar Patel Marg in Chanakypuri during the road cutting work undertaken by the agency.

According to NDMC officials, the ECIL was given permission for road cutting work on June 26 to lay underground cables for installing CCTV cameras along the route. However, after the work began, it was brought to the notice of the municipal agency that the trenching (horizontal drilling) work to dig pits was being carried out near the tree line, with the result that it could have damaged or weakened the roots of full-grown trees. The municipal agency then issued a show-cause notice to ECIL on July 1.

Following the notice, the ECIL Thursday stopped the digging work but its officials refused to comment on the matter.

The matter was brought to the attention of the NDMC by a Delhi-based lawyer, who complained that the digging work was being carried out in violation of National Green Tribunal orders and sent a 'cease and desist' notice to both the NDMC and the ECIL. The complaint was also sent to the Delhi forest department.

"We have written to the ECIL seeking an explanation on violating the conditions of the road-cutting permission as well as previous NGT orders. ECIL officials have intimated us that the work has been stopped for now. They will have to get the permission revalidated," a senior NDMC official said, on the condition of anonymity.

He added that the horticulture department has also been asked to assess the extent of damage, if any, caused to the trees. The stretch has a number of old and deep-rooted trees such as arjuna, jamun, ashoka and amalata. There are also a few ficus, peepal, semal and exotic trees as well.

As per the laid out conditions for road-cutting, trenchless/cutting/digging has to be carried out away from the trees to avoid any damage. The agency said care shall be taken and if any damage is caused to any tree, the agency carrying out the work will be liable to pay compensation, the notice read.

The NGT, in 2013, had asked all public authorities to de-concrete areas around trees and further directed that no kind of construction activity be allowed within a one-metre radius of the tree trunk.

Also, trenching within a one-metre radius of the tree trunk, that may damage trees, is a violation of the Delhi Preservation of Trees Act, 1994.

A senior forest official, who did not wish to be named, said "A field verification of the site will be taken up. If any damage is found to the trees, a notice shall be sent to the agency and necessary action will be taken."

CR Babu, professor emeritus at the Centre for Environment Management of Degraded Ecosystems at Delhi University, said, "Trenching within the one-metre radius of the tree trunk can have an impact on the roots. The extent of damage depends on the width and depth of the trench and the kind of root the trees have."

Since most trees on this stretch are deep-rooted, if the trench cuts into the roots, it can harm the supply of nutrients to the tree. These activities must be monitored well in order to save old and full-grown trees from potential damage."

DU students flags breach of privacy on varsity's online admit card portal

MM BUREAU

New Delhi/July 03

A section of final-year undergraduate students of Delhi University (DU) colleges Thursday raised concerns over a possible breach of privacy on the varsity's online portal for issuing admit cards for the upcoming online exams which are scheduled to start on July 10.

Students alleged that anyone can access a student's admit card that contains personal details such as their mobile phone number, address, date of birth and email id.

DU had earlier announced that it would conduct open book online exams for final-year students as a one-time measure in view of the Covid-19 pandemic and the need to ensure social distancing. The university is issuing admit cards online through a link available on its website. To access the admit card, students are provided a gateway password that is unique to each college. Students can enter this password along with their roll numbers and names to access the admit card.

Vivek Prasad, a final-year LLB student at DU's Campus Law Centre, said the gateway passwords are being circulated on WhatsApp groups, thereby posing a threat to the privacy of thousands of students.

"If anyone gets hold of this gateway password, (s)he can easily access the roll number and names of students, which are available on the college websites, and then access their admit cards. There is a real risk of potential stalkers getting hold of phone numbers, email ids and home addresses of girls using the admit card portal," he said.

Other students, too, raised similar concerns. Suruchi, a final-year BA (Hons) student at Rajdhani College, said, "It's scary for a student to know that her details can be accessed by anyone online. Our privacy has been openly violated by the university," she said.

Vinay Gupta, dean of examinations, said the university has given a unique password to each of the 60 colleges.

"We cannot distribute the admit card in person this year, given the circumstances, and we had to switch to the online mode. We do not expect our students to search for the roll numbers of other students and pull out their personal details. Students should have a moral responsibility to not indulge in something like that, considering the prevailing situation. Some students are trying to create a fuss over nothing," he said.

Later in the evening,

Gupta said the administration has fixed the issue faced by law students. "We added an option of one time password (OTP) on the admit card portal of law students since their roll numbers were easily accessible on the website. No other college student should face any such issue since their details are not available online," he said.

However, students of other colleges said their roll numbers are also easily available on websites. Amreen, a student of BA (Hons) English at Gargi College, said, "Some of the home addresses of students which are mentioned on their admit cards. Therefore, the university administration must take notice of this breach of confidentiality and privacy."

Despite several attempts, Tyagi did not respond to calls and texts sent to him seeking his comment happens?"

A group of DU teachers, who are also members of the Indian National Teachers' Congress, has written to vice-chancellor Yogesh Tyagi on Thursday saying, "The university administration has uploaded the admit cards on its website which can be accessed by anyone. Examination roll number and names can be accessed from the college websites. Surprisingly, gateway passwords are common for all students. Even an outsider can access the phone numbers, email addresses and home addresses of students which are mentioned on their admit cards. Therefore, the university administration must take notice of this breach of confidentiality and privacy."

Private labs halting tests 'not acceptable': HC

Our Correspondent

New Delhi/July 03

The Delhi High Court on Thursday stated that private labs halting rapid antigen testing was "not acceptable... at such a critical juncture when the number of Covid-19 cases was shooting up phenomenally, on a day by day basis". The court was responding to the Delhi government's statement that private labs had stopped collecting samples for rapid antigen testing. Satyankam, the additional standing counsel (ASC) for the Delhi government told a bench comprising justices Hima Kohli and Subramonium Prasad that the Delhi government had written to all private labs individually seeking clarification as to whether they were continuing with the collection of samples for testing after it found that the number of tests had reduced. He said that most laboratories had denied halting rapid antigen testing and added that they had several grievances against the Delhi government, that had largely been resolved by the expert committee constituted by the government. The court then said if any of the private labs had stopped sending phlebotomists to collect samples for testing for any reason, they must immediately respond to the Delhi government. The bench also said that the private labs should convey to the Delhi government if the expenses incurred by them are not covered by the rate fixed for the test by the Delhi government (₹2,400). ASC Satyankam told the court that a total of 68,041 tests have been conducted via the rapid antigen method from June 18 to June 23 at an average of about 11,350 per day. He said that the initial target of 20,000 per district daily was "quite ambitious" considering that the RT-PCR tests were also being conducted.

Diesel, supply disruption push up vegetable prices: Traders

Our Correspondent

New Delhi/July 03

The retail and wholesale prices of vegetables such as tomato, capsicum, okra, ridge gourd and cauliflower, have witnessed an "unusually sharp increase" in the national capital over the last week.

Traders and wholesale market committees attributed the increase to the annual disruption in supply during the monsoon, but also to the increased margins by middlemen who have suffered losses in the lockdown months, and the increase in diesel prices that has a direct correlation with transportation cost.

On Thursday, most retail markets in Delhi sold tomatoes for 70-80 per kg, capsicum at around 100-120 per kg, okra for 90-100 per kg, ridge gourd for 100-110 per kg and cauliflower for around 160 per kg. The rates were up between 50% and 100% in the last one week, the traders said.

"There has been no stability. Vegetables usually get costlier in this season because of the rain. The loss is relatively higher for green vegetables, which are more perishable in nature. But this year many factors played to increase the prices too much in short a time."

This is unusual," said Nilesh Kumar, a trader based in south Delhi's Mehrauli. Records of Azaadpur agriculture wholesale market, which accounts for more than 80% of the total supply of vegetables across Delhi, showed significant increase in prices.

On June 25, the wholesale prices for tomato was ₹14.75 per kg (on an average), this was ₹32, capsicum ₹10.25 per kg (₹32.5), okra ₹10.50 per kg (₹16.50), ridge gourd ₹9.50 per kg (₹12) and cauliflower ₹10.75 per kg (₹14).

While eastern and northeastern India continue to receive heavy rain, the monsoon is likely to intensify in the coming days in central and western India, the India meteorological department had reported.

Prices go up in the monsoon because the losses go up and add to the cost of vegetables. But this year, the increase in diesel prices have contributed to a two-fold blow," said Adil Khan, chairman of the agriculture produce market committee in Azaadpur.

The Azaadpur market gets its largest share of green vegetables from states such as Uttar Pradesh, Haryana, Punjab, Rajasthan and Madhya Pradesh. But, tomatoes mainly come from Maharashtra, Karnataka and Himachal Pradesh.

not just this but all matters arising out of the north-east Delhi riots.

However, Delhi government counsel Mehra said the process of obtaining the permission was completely legal and he had also written to that effect from deputy chief minister Manish Sisodia who is presently the home minister.

During the second half, ASO told the court that a law officer can be appointed by the Centre and not by the state government. He submitted that "right to appear for a client is a right that has been constitutionally sanctioned". He took the court through various judgments of the division bench of the Delhi high court in 2016 and the Supreme Court verdict on the decision making body of 2018, highlighting that the Centre was correct in filing the plea.

He also contended that there was an order by the President giving powers to the

Delhi riots: HC vacates stay on release of Faisal Farooq principal

Our Correspondent

New Delhi/July 03

The Delhi high court on Thursday vacated the stay on the release of Faisal Farooq, principal of the Rajdhani School, booked in connection with the north-east Delhi riots in and around his school. The order paves way for his release but Faisal continues to be in jail because he has been arrested in another FIR related to the riots.

Justice Suresh Kant lifted the interim orders passed on Farooq's release after the Centre and the Delhi government sparred over the issue of who would represent the Delhi police. During the hearing, the Centre's counsel said it had the permission to appear in all the cases pertaining to the north-east Delhi riots from the Lieutenant Governor. The Centre also produced a permission letter signed by the deputy secretary, home department, Delhi government.

The court noted that the controversy had existed since the first hearing on June 22, and with no solution till date, it would be 'prejudice' to the rights of the accused.

The court was hearing a plea by the Delhi Police seeking to cancel Farooq's bail granted by a lower court. On an earlier occasion, the hearing had seen a heated exchange between solicitor general Tushar Mehta and Delhi government standing counsel (senior) Rahul Mehra who submitted that the Centre had no power to file this petition against the June 20 order of the trial court.

Later, assistant solicitor general Aman Lekhi had appeared in place of Mehta who sought permission to withdraw his name from the petition out of disgust over the situation.

When the same happened on Wednesday, the court had asked the Centre to produce documents wherein Delhi Lieutenant Governor (L-G) Anil Bajaj granted the permission to challenge Farooq's bail. It had said that the DCP did not have the powers to appoint a lawyer and if the L-G's permission was not shown, the stay on Farooq's release would be vacated.

On Thursday, ASG Lekhi gave a letter by the secretary, home department of the Delhi government, which said that the L-G had given the permission to Mehta, Lekhi, and advocates Amit Mahajan and Rajat Nair to represent the Delhi police in the north-east Delhi riots.

However, Delhi government counsel Mehra said the process of obtaining the permission was completely legal and he had also written to that effect from deputy chief minister Manish Sisodia who is presently the home minister.

During the second half, ASO told the court that a law officer can be appointed by the Centre and not by the state government. He submitted that "right to appear for a client is a right that has been constitutionally sanctioned". He took the court through various judgments of the division bench of the Delhi high court in 2016 and the Supreme Court verdict on the decision making body of 2018, highlighting that the Centre was correct in filing the plea.

He also contended that there was an order by the President giving powers to the
