IN-FAQ BY JOY BHATTACHARJYA

This week's quiz is all about eponyms, people or places who inspired other names.

Questions

1 What connects 17th century French governor Michael Begon, Swedish doctor Andres Dahl, German scientist Leonard Fuchs and Scottish physician, naturalist and immigrant to the US, Alexander Garden? The list is by no means complete!

2 Which two word phrase for a loyal assistant originated from a best-selling 17th century book based on the life of Scottish sailor Alexander Selkirk?

3 A tall multi-layered sandwich made with a variety of meats, cheeses and condiments and usually crowned by an olive pierced by a toothpick or skewer is named after which enduring comic strip character?

4 Though he was badly wounded in battle and received a meagre pension, this soldier remained totally devoted to Emperor Napoleon. He was immortalized in the 1831 comedy La cocarde tricolore and his surname became a byword for blind unthinking belief in a cause. Name him.

5 A derrick is a lifting device commonly used for construction and aboard ships and docking facilities. The derrick is named after Thomas Derrick, who lived in the late 16th and early 17th century. What was his profession?

6 Which specific type of headwear was designed in 1849 by brothers Thomas and William to fulfil an order to design a close-fitting low crowned hat for gamekeepers that would not be knocked off by low-hanging branches?

7 In 1943, Chef Ignacio Anaya had to whip up something for some unexpected American tourists at his restaurant in Piedras Negras in Mexico and came up with a finger food of chips, cheese and jalapenos which were an instant hit, and became known by his nickname. What was Ignacio's nickname?

8 Charles Brannock spent two years working on a device patented by him in 1925, which was named after him and used by almost everyone. What does a Brannock device measure?

9 Gothard Glas was born in Weimar Germany in 1923, and later moved to the Middle East and changed his name. He designed something that became a staple for his national army and also for security forces around the world, which he wanted to have a different name, but which ended up being named after him. What name did he adopt after moving to the Middle East?

10 Which film star inspired the nickname for the first inflatable live preserver, invented by Peter Markus in 1928 which saved thousands of lives during the Second World War?

Answers

1. They have flowers named after them - Begonia, Dahlia, Fuschia and Gardenia - respectively
2. Man Friday, from Robinson Crusoe written by Daniel Defoe
3. It's called a Dagwood Sandwich after Blondie's husband in the eponymous comic strip
4. Nicholas Chauvin, from where we get 'chauvinism'
5. Thomas Derrick was an executioner. The device was originally designed to hang criminals
6. Bowler hats, designed by the Bowler brothers. The top hats previously used were easily knocked off.
7. Nacho, from where the dish got its name
8. Shoe size. Some of the first Brannock devices are housed at the Smithsonian Institution
9. Uziel Gal, the Uzi submachine gun is named after him
10. Mae West

US allows 'automatic extension' of work permits for spouses of H-1B visa holders

Move will benefit thousands of spouses of IT professionals

DEBANGANA GHOSH

Mumbai, November 12

Following a class-action lawsuit filed by the American Immigration Lawyers Association (AILA) on behalf of immigrant spouses this summer, the Biden administration agreed on a settlement to allow automatic extension of work authorisation permits to the spouses of L1 and H-1B visa holders for 180 days.

Most sought-after visa

The H-1B visa is the most sought-after work visa of IT companies. Every year nearly 70 per cent of the total H-1B visas get allocated to Indian IT professionals globally. The spouses of H-1B visa holders get H-4 visas.

With this new immigration-friendly ruling, thousands of spouses of immigrant, specialised professionals will benefit. The settlement was decided by the Department of Homeland Security.

"An L-2 and H-4 visa holder has to resubmit their EAD (employment authorisation documents) extension applications before their existing EAD expires.

"The extension applications take about six to 12 months to be adjudicated. And if the current EAD expires in the interim, they have to stop working and are likely to lose their employment. A group of people affected by such delays filed this lawsuit to get some relief," Poorvi Chothani, managing partner of LawQuest, told BusinessLine.

"The settlement in the lawsuit provides for automatic extension of EADs for 180 days, provided they have timely applied for EAD extensions. This will greatly benefit thousands of individuals. However, this will not be helpful for those whose extensions are not adjudicated within the 180 days grace period at which time that will have to stop working," she added. "This (H-4 visa holders) is a group that always met the regulatory test for automatic extension of EADs, but the agency previously prohibited them from that benefit and forced them to wait for reauthorisation. People were suffering. They were losing their high-paying jobs for absolutely no legitimate reason, causing harm to them and US businesses," said AILA's Jon Wasden.

Reverses policy

The litigation reversed the US Citizenship and Immigration Services' (USCIS) policy that prohibited H-4 spouses from benefiting from the automatic extension of their employment authorisation during the pendency of standalone EAD applications.

Partial relief

L-2 visa holders, who will be the spouses of L-1 visa holders, will also get partial relief. "Although this is a giant achievement, the parties' agreement will further result in a massive change in position for the USCIS, which now recognises that L-2 spouses enjoy automatic work authorisation incident to status, meaning these spouses of executives and managers will no longer have to apply for employment authorisation prior to working in the United States," said AILA.

Earlier, the Obama government had allowed work authorisation to certain categories of H-1B visa holders. Till date, over 90,000 H-4 visa holders have received work authorisation, of which, a major chunk are Indian women.

PEER REVIEW

'Phase III trial data confirm 77.8% efficacy of Covaxin'

OUR BUREAU

Hyderabad, November 12

The safety and efficacy analysis data from the Phase III clinical trials of Bharat Biotech's Covid vaccine, Covaxin, has been peer reviewed and published in The Lancet.

The peer review confirms the efficacy of Covaxin against Covid. The efficacy analysis demonstrated Covaxin to be 77.8 per cent effective against symptomatic Covid through evaluation of 130 confirmed cases, with 24 observed in the vaccine group versus 106 in the placebo group, and it is 93.4 per cent effective against severe symptomatic Covid.

Delta variant

Covaxin is the only Covid vaccine that has demonstrated efficacy data from Phase III clinical trials against the Delta variant at 65.2 per cent, said Bharat Biotech on Friday.

"The peer review of Covaxin Phase III clinical trial data in The Lancet, an authoritative voice in global medicine, validates our commitment to data transparency and meeting the stringent peer-review standards of world leading medical journals," said Krishna Ella, Chairman and Managing Director, Bharat Biotech.

"The data from our product development and clinical trials have been published in 10 peer-reviewed journals, making Covaxin one of the most highly published Covid vaccines in the world," he added.

Hyderabad-based Bharat Biotech developed the vaccine in association with Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR).

Describing it as one of the most successful public-private partnerships, Balram Bhargava, Director General, ICMR, said: "I am delighted to see that the Phase III efficacy data has also been published in The Lancet. This speaks a lot about the strong position of Covaxin among other global front-runners against Covid."
