NO admissions won't be affected by changes in CBSE's evaluation process : Officials

Our Correspondent

New Delhi/June 27

Ending the apprehensions of students seeking admission to honours courses, for which the Central Board of Secondary Education's (CBSE) Class 12 exam could not be held due to the Covid-19 pandemic, officials in the Delhi University (DU) on Friday said that they would consider the board's alternative plan of evaluation for these subjects.

They also said that the changes in the CBSE's evaluation mode would not affect the DU's merit-based admission process for undergraduate courses, which started on June 20 and would continue till August.

The University is yet to release the release dates for the cut-off lists.

The DU officials said that students will be able to take admission to all courses, irrespective of whether they have appeared in the exam of that particular subject.

The CBSE, on Thursday, informed the Supreme Court that it would not conduct the remaining exams for classes 10 and 12, scheduled between July 1 and July 10, due to the pandemic.

The board, on Friday, issued a detailed plan under which the remaining exams would be evaluated based on the average of the top two or three exams students appeared for, before the lockdown to contain the Covid-19 pandemic was announced.

However, those who could appear in only one or two exams will be evaluated based on those subjects and internal assessments. These students will also get a chance to appear in exams conducted by the CBSE to improve their marks later. The board will announce the results of the Class 12 exams by July 15.

Soon after the board's announcement, students of Class 12 seeking admissions to courses for which exams were pending raised a few concerns regarding a possible dip in their overall scores. Exams for 12 subjects, including Hindi, geography, business studies, biotechnology, computer science and sociology, are yet to be held across the country. An additional 11 subjects are pending for Class 12 students in northeast Delhi, where exams were suspended due to the communal riots.

However, DU's Dean of Admissions Shobha Bagoi said that the average marks of students are generally the same every year, which is why CBSE changed evaluation process will not affect the merit-based admission process.

process for undergraduate courses much. Generally, the average marks of all subjects are more or less the same. It would have been a problem if they were not marking the subjects for which exams could not be conducted," she said.

Bagoi said that the University's admission committee would hold a meeting next week to discuss the changes brought in by the CBSE. "We will still wait for the exam. DU will not have to make any changes in the admission process. The issue would have arisen if there were no marks given in some subjects. Now, even those seeking admission to courses like Sociology (Hons) or BSc to BA (Hons) or BSc (Hons) courses in any subject, one has to include the particular subject in which the admission is sought while calculating the average of 'best of four'. Failing which, there is a deduction of 2.5% marks from the average."

AK Bhargava, a former member of the DU's executive council, said, "If the CBSE board is marking all subjects irrespective of whether a student has appeared for the exam, there is no need to make any changes in the admission process. The issue would have arisen if there were no marks given in some subjects. Now, even those seeking admission to courses like Sociology (Hons) or BSc in Computer Science, for which exams could not be conducted, will face no issue since they will be awarded marks in these subjects as well," he said.

Some principals, however, are of the opinion that the change in the evaluation process could lead to high cut-offs this year. Manoj Khanna, the principal of Ranjnas College, said, "In DU, the admission process is CBSE-driven. Over 90% of applications come from CBSE students. There is a high probability that more students will score between 95% and 100% marks this year since their exams will be scored based on averages. Colleges will have to keep the cut-off high to avoid over-admission."

However, some teachers said students who usually focus on one particular subject could score less overall if the exam is not held. Pankaj Gupta, a faculty member at Rajdhani College and a member of DU's admission committee, said, "There is a possibility that some students were good in certain subjects for which exams could not be conducted and were preparing hard for them. In such cases, they might not be able to score much in other subjects. This will drop their total percentage, due to which they could miss a chance to get a seat in a DU college," he said.

1000-bed facility near Delhi airport to be operational by next month

MM BUREAU

New Delhi/June 27

Wooden slabs being laid out and the ground was being levelled with multiple machines set in motion at a large open field. The white makeshift tents, the roofs and the pillars being placed could be spotted right from the road near Mehra Nagar village in southwest Delhi, which goes up to the Delhi Airport's domestic terminal.

Construction work is on in full swing at the site where the place is under a full-fledged temporary air-conditioned 1,000-bedded Covid facility to meet the need for more beds to house Covid-19 patients in view of the rapid surge in cases. Till Friday, Delhi had recorded 77,240 cases of the disease.

The facility is being readied by the Defence Research and Development

Organisation (DRDO), which is under the Ministry of Defence. It has been roped in by the Union Home Ministry for the construction. The Directorate of Civil Works and Estates (DCWE), a wing of the DRDO, is handling the construction. Officials said the hospital is likely to come up by early next month.

According to officials at the site, the facility is coming up on around 25,000 square metres of land belonging to the Indian Air Force. Besides, patients and doctors' blocks, a testing lab and a pharmacy will come up. A mortuary is also being planned.

"The structure is coming up fast to meet the need for extra beds for Covid-19 patients. All services will be available within the premises, from testing of samples to accommodation for staff. There will be a patient block with four hut-shaped sections housing 200 beds each. In each of the huts, there will be around 120 cabins such that two patients can stay per cabin," Gagan Wadhwa, chief construction engineer (CE), DRDO said.

Of the four sections to house patients, one will be dedicated for ICU beds with oxygen support. The complete facility will be fully air-conditioned.

The facility is being designed as per World Health Organisation (WHO) guidelines for hospital care. Every bed will have oxygen support so that patients do not need to be shifted in case of a sudden drop in oxygen levels. Each section will have a set of toilets and bathrooms," he said.

Authorities said they are working on logistics of shifting patients to the centre, and which hospital will be attached to the facility. Patients will be using charging points for mobile phones/laptops and storage units by their beds to keep their belongings.

"Alongside the patients' block, will be the doctors' area where patients will be assessed, plus another area to house the medical staff."

Two doctors will be on duty for assessment. A separate block with cabins and an attached set of toilets is being built to provide on-site accommodation to around 50 doctors and paramedic staff. A cafeteria will be set up for medical staff," said another senior official on site, who did not wish to be named.

Authorities said they were working out provisions for food and other such services.

The doctors' block will have a donning and doffing area for personal protective equipment (PPE) kits. There will be a three-metre corridor for the movement of medical and support staff to help to maintain physical distancing.

The DRDO has tied up with BSES for power supply and back-up while Delhi Jal Board will be providing water supply. "A separate waste disposal and sewage management system is being developed. We were able to get water and power connections in such a short time because of the support of the union home ministry," Wadhwa said.

On Tuesday, union home minister Amit Shah had tweeted: "I would also like to inform the people of Delhi that a 1,000 bed full-bedded hospital with 250 ICU beds is being developed for Covid patients."

House-to-house Covid-19 screening begins in Delhi

MM BUREAU

New Delhi/June 27

Government officials in at least five revenue districts of the Capital started house-to-house screening of people across neighbourhoods on Friday, according to a five-point Covid-19 management plan chalked out after a meeting chaired by Union home minister Amit Shah last Sunday.

The screening exercise involves checking people for signs of flu such as fever, sore throat, cough and asking them about their travel history to map the virus. The aim is to identify people with Covid-like symptoms, create a comprehensive database and then get them tested. While the health survey is scheduled to be completed by July 6, several district officials still await a clear standard operating procedure (SOP). For now, the districts that have kick-started the exercise are largely relying on protocols prepared by magistrates and chief medical officers concerned, at least until an SOP is issued, senior government officials said.

Delhi has around four million households, according to the records of the government's planning department. For the screening exercise, the district officials have roped in civil defence volunteers, accredited social health activists (ASHA), auxiliary nurse midwife workers, booth level workers (BLO) and municipal staff, including domestic breeding checkers, licensing inspectors and sanitation workers—apart from the government health workers who have experience on the job. With time, primary school teachers and clerical staff from zonal offices are likely to be roped in as well, a senior government official said. On Friday, the survey was conducted in neighbourhoods such as Karol Bagh, Keshav Puram and Civil Lines, among others. Media followed several such teams throughout the day.

Delhi govt calls emergency meeting after locust swarms seen in Gurugram

MM BUREAU

New Delhi/June 27

Several residents of Gurugram posted videos of the invading insects flying in and media saw some clumped kitchen utensils and played loud music to repel the swarms of locusts.

Gurugram district administration had on Friday issued a warning about a likely invasion by swarms of locusts and asked residents to play loud music and beat utensils to repel the insects that feed on standing crops and green vegetables.

The short-horned grasshoppers are known to devour everything in their path, posing an unprecedented threat to food supply and livelihoods of millions of people. An adult locust can eat quantity equal to its weight daily, and just a single square kilometre of the swarm can contain up to 80 million locusts. Locusts can fly up to 100km daily and a one square km swarm can eat as much food as 35,000 people in terms of weight in a single day.

Serological survey to analyse Covid-19 spread commences in Delhi

MM BUREAU

New Delhi/June 27

A serological survey to undertake a comprehensive analysis of the spread of Covid-19 in Delhi commenced in some parts of the city on Saturday amid a rise in the number of infections. As part of the survey, blood samples of 20,000 people will be tested to ascertain the presence of anti-bodies, the Union health ministry has said. The exercise will be carried out jointly by the National Centre for Disease Control (NCDC) and the Delhi government and will be held till July 10. The serological survey has started from today and it will cover 20,000 people. The survey is being conducted door to door and it will reveal the extent of coronavirus spread in Delhi. Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal said in an online briefing. According to an official from East district, the NCDC would train lab technicians on how to collect samples on Saturday and they were likely to commence the exercise from Monday. Similarly, in the Southeast district, the survey did not start on Saturday.

MM BUREAU

New Delhi/June 27

All schools in the national capital, both public and private, will remain closed till July 31, the Delhi government said on Friday, while announcing that online classes for students will continue.

Schools in Delhi have been shut since March 19 in the wake of the coronavirus disease outbreak, though they have switched to online learning by conducting classes via video conferencing and sharing study materials on WhatsApp groups.

On Friday, education department officials presented before Manish Sisodia, deputy chief minister and education minister, district-wise reports prepared based on the suggestions of school authorities, students and parents. The decision to extend the closure of schools was announced after the meeting.

The Delhi government has been holding consultations with principals of private and public schools along with teachers and parents on how to resume operations in schools after the summer vacation ends on June 30. Classes usually begin on July 1 after summer break.

Friday's meeting was aimed at designing an action plan for schools so as to ensure that they are well-prepared whenever they reopen, according to government officials.

After the meeting, a statement by the government reduction of the syllabus were some of the major suggestions given at the meeting," the statement said, referring to the reopening plans.

The recommendations to the government also said primary classes should be held once or twice a week with just 12-15 students in a class. While students from classes 3 to 5 could attend school on alternate days, those between classes 6 and 8 may be present once or twice a week, according to the suggestions. For students in 9th and 10th standards, classes should be taken in very small groups once or twice a week along with online classes, it was discussed.

"It was suggested during the meeting that class 11 and 12 should be conducted on alternate days and online classes should be carried out on remaining days."

"Continuing with the online classes wherever possible, carrying proper sanitization work in classrooms, distributing masks to students, thermal screening of every student at the school entrance gate, and
