Engage product launched with two new clients

- REFFIND Engage now available to all customers – addresses critical employee engagement issue for companies
- Second revenue stream for REFFIND
- Two new clients – Schneider Electric & Interactive – to deploy Employ & Engage

Employee engagement technology company REFFIND Limited (ASX:RFN) has released REFFIND Engage as two new clients commence use of the new product along with the existing Employ offering.

REFFIND Engage allows companies to easily conduct a 'pulse-check' of employees and engage with them on important workplace issues. The smartphone platform provides a fast, fun way to gauge sentiment as opposed to traditional, archaic methods such as written surveys.

The first two customers to deploy Engage are energy management specialist Schneider Electric and Australia's largest privately owned IT services provider Interactive.

Schneider Electric has committed to the rollout of REFFIND's Employ and Engage products in Australia and New Zealand. Schneider operates in more than 100 countries and is focused on making energy safe, reliable, efficient, productive and green. It has 170,000 employees worldwide and achieved revenues of 25 billion euros in 2014.

Interactive will implement both Employ and Engage within Australia. Interactive prides itself on hiring and retaining the best staff in the IT industry. As a top 20 best place to work in Australia, and Australia's largest privately-owned IT company, Interactive is always looking for ways to improve and transform in a changing and competitive world.

"We believe our partnership with REFFIND offers the best referral and staff engagement methodology available," said Managing Director of Interactive, Christopher Ride.

"Nothing is more important than brilliant staff that are engaged, it is the lifeblood of every innovative business. REFFIND makes it easier to pulse-check our staff than ever before, as well as identify even more great people."

REFFIND's Engage product provides customers with the benefit of real time feedback and reporting as well as scheduled delivery of content to certain groups of users.

"The traditional company survey is dreaded by staff, time consuming and ineffective as many employees have moved on by the time the results have been collated," said REFFIND Co-Founder and Managing Director Jamie Pride.

"REFFIND Engage provides a simple answer for this problem and we expect uptake to be swift from new and existing clients."
