ASX RELEASE

Chief Financial Officer Appointment

Atlas Arteria (ASX:ALX) today announces that David Collins has been appointed Chief Financial Officer. David will replace Nadine Lennie who left Atlas Arteria on 31 March 2022.

David is currently Chief Financial Officer of Chorus New Zealand, having held this role since 2018. David brings demonstrated experience in driving business performance across a range of financial and commercial disciplines.

Prior to Chorus, he has held several senior finance roles during eight years spent at Aurizon Holdings and nine years at Brookfield Multiplex. David brings significant international experience having worked in businesses across Australia, the UK, Germany and the Middle East.

Atlas Arteria Chief Executive Officer Graeme Bevans said, "I am pleased to welcome David to our team, and I am confident that he will bring new insights and significant value to Atlas Arteria as we continue to grow securityholder value."

Pending David's commencement, Emma Stepcic Director, Finance and Reporting has been appointed Acting Chief Financial Officer. Emma, an experienced finance executive, has been with Atlas Arteria since 2018.

About Atlas Arteria

Atlas Arteria (ASX:ALX) is a global operator and developer of toll roads, creating value for our investors over the long-term through considered and disciplined management. The roads we develop, operate and invest in benefit communities through reduced travel time, greater time certainty, reduced fuel consumption and carbon emissions.

Today the Atlas Arteria Group consists of four businesses. We own a 31.14% interest in the APRR toll road group in France. Adjacent to the APRR business is the smaller ADELAC business which connects to APRR in south-east France. Together APRR and ADELAC comprise a 2,318km motorway network located in the East and South East of France. In the US, we have 100% of the economic interest in the Dulles Greenway, a 22km toll road in the Commonwealth of Virginia. In Germany, we own 100% of the Warnow Tunnel in the north-east city of Rostock.
