Capral achieves certification under the latest Aluminium Stewardship Initiative (ASI) Performance and Chain of Custody Standards

Friday, 9 June 2023

Capral Aluminium recently received certification from ASI under both their performance and chain of custody standards. This certification recognises Capral's commitment to responsible production, sourcing, and management of aluminium products. With this certification, Capral joins a select group of global aluminium suppliers who have met the rigorous standards set by ASI.

Capral currently offers Australian Manufacturers a lower carbon aluminium option under its LocAl brand and can now additionally provide ASI Chain of Custody certification, delivering an important market advantage.

"As buyers become increasingly conscious of the environmental impact of products, Capral's ASI certification is a significant achievement and reinforces our position as a responsible and sustainable business" comments Tony Dragicevich Capral CEO.

"It has been a difficult journey; these standards set high benchmarks and are assessed rigorously by third-party auditors. We can proudly hang our hat on the fact that we are the first Australasian aluminium extruder to achieve certification under the ASI Performance and Chain of Custody standards. Our management systems developed over many years helped us achieve this in less than twelve months - a phenomenal effort by our team."

ASI is a global non-profit organisation that sets standards for responsible aluminium production, sourcing, and management. ASI works with stakeholders across the aluminium value chain, including producers, suppliers, and end-users, to promote sustainable practices and ensure social, environmental, and ethical responsibility.

ASI certification is becoming increasingly important for organisations within the Aluminium value chain wanting to demonstrate their commitment to sustainability and responsible procurement. The certification process helps companies to identify areas where they can improve their sustainability practices, leading to long-term benefits for both the company, its customers, and the environment.

Capral has a long-standing commitment to sustainability. The company recognises that responsible environmental stewardship is essential for its long-term success and the well-being of the communities in which it operates. Capral has implemented various sustainability initiatives, including energy efficiency

"This certification recognises the importance our business places on responsible procurement and environmental management processes".
