DOWNER RECEIVES LETTERS OF AWARD FOR CARMICHAEL COAL MINE CONTRACTS

Downer EDI Limited (Downer) today announced it had received two Letters of Award from Adani Mining Pty Ltd (Adani) advising of its intention to enter into contracts for the provision of mining services and the construction of mine infrastructure at the Carmichael Coal Mine in the Galilee Basin in Central Queensland. The contracts are expected to have a combined value in excess of $2.0 billion over seven years.

Under the five-year mining services contract, with two additional one-year options, Downer will be responsible for:

- statutory management and mine operations;
- drilling and blasting; and
- load and haul of waste and coal.

Under the mine infrastructure contract, Downer will be responsible for the engineering, procurement and construction of on-site infrastructure and preparatory civil works.

The capital for the major fleet for the mining services contract will be provided by Adani.

Both Letters of Award are subject to the parties executing binding contracts which would be followed by pre-production and planning in early 2015 with mine infrastructure construction commencing in the fourth quarter of 2015. First mining is scheduled for the second quarter of 2016 and first coal in 2017.

Adani Australia Country Head and CEO Jeyakumar Janakaraj welcomed today's announcement, the latest milestone in Adani's prompt transition from the approvals to the build phase of the company's mine, rail and port projects.

"The Carmichael mine lies at the heart of these projects which will deliver vital export opportunities for Queensland, 10,000 jobs, $22 billion in taxes and royalties to be invested right back into frontline services across our State, and crucial work opportunities for small and medium sized businesses. This partnership with Downer reflects the clear confidence that tier one firms have in Adani's projects and we welcome the chance to work with such a respected, proven partner on this critically important task," Mr. Janakaraj said.

"In selecting Downer as the mining services contractor, we are confident that not only we are well placed to meet our longstanding first coal guidance of 2017 but that we are one step closer to our goal of building a long-term future with Queensland," added Mr. Janakaraj.

Adani's mine, rail and port projects encompass the high quality, cost-efficient Carmichael mine, near Clermont, both the Carmichael and North Galilee Basin Rail, Queensland's first standard gauge line which will help open up the basin by linking the mine to the port of Abbot Point, and the existing Terminal One and soon to be constructed Terminal Zero at Abbot Point, near Bowen.

The Chief Executive Officer of Downer, Grant Fenn, said the Adani mining services contract would be one of the largest of its type signed in Australia in recent years.

"We're very much looking forward to working with Adani at the Carmichael Coal Mine, which is expected to become the largest thermal coal mine in Australia," he said.
