IIG Appoints Chief Geologist

IIG wishes to advise that it has appointed Darin Rowley as its Chief Geologist to provide the company with ongoing expertise in assessing a growing list of prospective gold mining investments that the company is currently reviewing.

Chairman Tim Moore says:

“At present we have upwards of five prospective mining investments at an advanced stage of evaluation or negotiation. It is now important more than ever that we bring in additional resources and expertise to assist the company in finalising these opportunities. We are very excited to have Darin on board. Not only will Darin provide invaluable support in our review of prospective mining investments but will be instrumental in the continuing development of our Lionel Diggings gold project. In that regard we expect results from the recent drilling at Lionel Diggings to be available in the next two weeks.”

Mr Rowley has over 15 years experience and has worked as a geologist at some of the world's leading miners including Phelps Dodge, Battle Mountain Gold, Oxiana Ltd and Emperor Mines to name a few.

Yours sincerely
