WA Department for Community Development Improves Case Management Systems with Intelligent IT Solutions

Perth, Monday 3 July 2006 – The Western Australian Department for Community Development will replace its existing client information systems with a single integrated system using cost-effective off-the-shelf software.

The new client information solution, Assist, will be implemented progressively across the Department's 84 office locations in three phases.

Under the three-year contract with Unisys West, the Department will integrate a range of commercial products including Oracle's PeopleSoft Enterprise CRM (Customer Relationship Management) suite and Objective's ECM (Enterprise Content Management) suite.

The system will provide the Department's 1,700 staff with immediate access to extensive client and electronic case file information across the state of Western Australia.

According to the Department's Judy Hogben, Assist Executive Sponsor, the new IT solution will provide a range of benefits to staff including easy access to better information.

"The new system will strengthen the ability of the Department and interrelated agencies to collaborate and share information more efficiently and effectively across the state and help deliver a range of long-term quantifiable benefits to the families and children of Western Australia," said Ms Hogben.

"For example, the Department's 24 Hour Crisis Care Unit staff will be able to immediately perform a person search and get a 'single view' of the client showing the client's full electronic file history and integrated case notes. Currently, much of this information is stored in several systems and hard copy files across the organisation," she continued.

Chief Executive Officer of Unisys West, Peter Price, said he was delighted to announce the contract with the Department for Community Development.

"We're looking forward to working with the Department to help implement the Assist client information system," said Mr. Price.

"Unisys West has a successful record of working with the West Australian Government – in education, justice, land, corrective services, and elsewhere. What's additionally exciting about this new contract is that we are working with two partners – Oracle and Objective – on the solution. These partnerships mark a new phase in the growth and development of the Unisys West business," concluded Mr. Price.

The net effect of the contract will be to provide a contemporary information system, which will enhance services to families and children within Western Australia.

The contract with Unisys West has an option to extend for a further two years.

Other Western Australian Government clients of Unisys West include the Department of the Attorney General, Department of Corrective Services, Department of Education & Training, Department of Fisheries, Metropolitan Cemeteries Board, Department of Housing & Works and Department of Land Information.
