

Corum Enters My Health Record Partnership

Corum Group Limited (ASX: COO) is pleased to announce its partnership with the Australia Digital Health Agency (ADHA) to build connectivity and functionality for My Health Record.

Corum has joined the Community Pharmacy Software Industry Partnership to provide access for pharmacists to view hospital discharge summaries, shared health summaries, medicines and allergies information via the Government's My Health Record. This initiative will enable Corum customers to view relevant and timely health information to provide better advice to their patients; assisting pharmacists to play a more integrated role in medications management and coordinated care.

Corum will also submit electronic dispense records directly to the My Health Record platform on behalf of its 1,000+ pharmacy customers. As the Government progresses to an opt-out model for My Health Record in 2018, Corum believes the Australian public and healthcare professionals will expect that enabling software is integrated with and that relevant information is recorded in My Health Record.

David Clarke, Corum CEO commented: "Content and accessibility are the first steps to realising the potential of My Health Record and giving confidence to its varied users. If My Health Record is to succeed, the health software industry needs to support the concept, build the enabling infrastructure, and advocate its use and adoption."

"We are encouraged by the collaborative approach of the ADHA and believe initiatives like My Health Record can greatly assist community pharmacy to deliver enhanced clinical care and better health outcomes for their patients."

For further details please contact:

David Clarke
CEO | Company Secretary

About Corum Group:

Corum Group is one of Australia's leading providers of software solutions to community pharmacies and pharmacy groups. Dedicated to the success of community pharmacy and the care of their patients, Corum has an enviable pedigree dating back to the pioneering days of pharmacy software. Corum's point of sale, dispense, head office and associated software systems are in use by thousands of pharmacies across Australia, underpinning their businesses and supporting the health care of millions of Australians.