AEROMAGNETIC SURVEY SUCCESSFULLY FLOWN

HIGHLIGHTS

- Aeromagnetic survey successfully flown across Kangwane South Tenement
- Interpretation work to commence immediately

Hawkstone Mining Limited (ASX: HWK) (Hawkstone or the Company) is pleased to announce that the aeromagnetic survey has been successfully flown across its Kangwane South Tenement, South Africa.

The aeromagnetic survey was flown over the entire resource area on a 50m x 500m line spacing for approximately 1075 line kilometres. Interpretation of the raw data received from the survey will now commence.

It is anticipated that the information provided by the interpretation of the aeromagnetic survey will assist with the identification for the proposed 6-8 hole Phase Two drill program. The drill program will be completed on a geometric grid in areas the Company believe to be more prospective for further coal mineralisation.

The aeromagnetic survey is expected to cost approximately $60,000 and, subject to the results, it is anticipated that the 6-8 hole drill program will cost approximately $100,000.
