2 June 2016

Toro Managing Director is appointed Chair of the Minerals Council of Australia

Toro Energy Limited (ASX: TOE) is pleased to advise that the Board of Directors of the Minerals Council of Australia has elected Dr Vanessa Guthrie to chair the organisation for the next two years.

Dr Guthrie is the first woman to chair the mining industry representative body in its 40 year history.

Outgoing chair Andrew Michelmore said Dr Guthrie had wide experience in the resources sector, deep knowledge of public policy and community engagement and would be an outstanding advocate for the sector.

The Board of Toro Energy wishes to congratulate Dr Guthrie on her appointment to chair the Minerals Council of Australia.

Toro Energy's vision is to be Australia's next uranium producer. Toro will maximise shareholder returns through responsible mine development and asset growth.

Toro's flagship asset is the 100% owned Wiluna Uranium Project, consisting of six calcrete hosted uranium deposits. The project is located 30 kilometres southwest of Wiluna in Central Western Australia. The Centipede and Lake Way deposits have received government approval for mining, providing the Wiluna Project with the opportunity to become Western Australia's first uranium mine.

Toro also owns a highly prospective suite of exploration properties through Toro's own discovery at the Theseus Project on the Western Australian/Northern Territory border. The company is also pursuing growth opportunities through accretive uranium project acquisitions.
