Conducting USCOM's Annual General Meeting

USCOM's annual general meeting is intended to give shareholders the opportunity to:

- Hear presentations by the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer about the operations and performance of the Company and the outlook for the year ahead.
- Consider and vote on the resolutions before the meeting.
- Ask questions of the Board, management and the auditor. The Chairman and CEO will generally answer questions on behalf of the Board and management.

To help achieve these objectives USCOM will:

- Allow a reasonable opportunity for shareholders as a whole at the meeting to ask questions about or make comments on the operations, performance and management of the company.
- Answer shareholders' questions honestly and fairly. If we can't answer a question at the meeting we will seek to provide a response to the shareholder asking the question after the meeting.
- Inform shareholders as to the proxy position with respect to the resolutions to be considered by the meeting and the manner in which the Chairman intends to vote undirected proxies.
- Give shareholders an opportunity to vote on the substantive resolutions before the meeting before moving to the discussion of the accounts and general questions.

To help achieve these objectives we ask that shareholders:

- Are courteous and respectful to all shareholders and others attending the meeting.
- Confine their questions to the matters before the meeting and matters relevant to shareholders as a whole. If a shareholder's question appears to be more relevant to the shareholder's own circumstances than to shareholders as a whole we will ask that the shareholder raise the matter with management outside the meeting.
- Keep their questions and comments to a reasonable length of time to allow as many shareholders as possible who wish to speak at the meeting an opportunity to do so. Generally a maximum of three minutes each time a shareholder addresses the meeting will be appropriate.
- Respect the privacy of individual shareholders attending the meeting and assist in the orderly conduct of the meeting by not photographing, video taping or recording the proceedings of the meeting.
