WEBJET INTEGRATES JETSTAR

Webjet today announced the integration of Jetstar into its Travel Service Aggregation (TSA) platform which now results in all domestic flights; Qantas, Virgin Blue and Jetstar, sitting side by side.

Commenting, Webjet's Managing Director, David Clarke said: "This latest roll out of the TSA now brings together all of the domestic components. Along with that change the TSA home page now integrates special Last Minute product offerings and eliminates one layer in the entry process into the TSA booking engine. As announced recently a new commercial arrangement with RatesToGo will be incorporated in the next update along with pre packaging of airline and hotel arrangements. We expect that update will be in late June".

WEBJET SHAREHOLDER DOCUMENT DESPATCH

We also take this opportunity of advising the market that we expect to despatch documentation to shareholders in relation to our commercial equity alliance with Harvey World Travel, at the end of next week

Current market conditions and booking levels and margins are essentially in line with forecast.
