MARKET RELEASE

Xero and Square announce integration in the U.S.

31 March 2014

Accounting software company Xero Limited \(XRO\) announces an integration with Square, Inc., a U.S. company with a suite of business tools aimed at making commerce easy.

The integration will enable customers to seamlessly link their Xero and Square accounts in minutes, allowing transaction data to flow automatically from point of sale from Square to back-office accounting software from Xero. Sellers and small businesses can now save time, which was previously spent manually inputting sales.

Peter Karpas, Xero CEO North America, says, "With a joint commitment to building beautiful software solutions that are affordable and accessible to small businesses, Xero is thrilled to be a part of Square's software partner platform. Like Square, we are always looking at ways of enhancing our existing tools, with time saving at the heart, so this feels like the perfect partnership."

Small businesses using Xero in the U.S. will be able to integrate with Square from today in the U.S. (31 March 2014).
