

NICE inContact Receives Highest Scores in Four of Five Use Cases in Gartner Report

NICE inContact receives highest scores in both geographic use cases, North America and Western Europe, and two application use cases, customer engagement center and agile contact center

Salt Lake City, January 10, 2018 – NICE inContact, a NICE (Nasdaq: NICE) business, provider of CXone, the world's #1 cloud customer experience platform, today announced that it received the highest product scores across four of five use cases in Gartner's "Critical Capabilities for Contact Center as a Service" research report. NICE inContact received the highest scores in both geographic use cases, North America and Western Europe, and two application use cases, customer engagement and agile contact center, for CXone. Gartner's report evaluates 11 unique critical capabilities within each use case.

NICE inContact CXone has over 275,000 agents in the cloud in more than 100 countries on both global instances and a global Voice as a Service infrastructure.

"Companies across the globe rely on NICE inContact CXone to power engaging agent and customers experiences, and win in the experience economy," said Paul Jarman, NICE inContact CEO. "We believe this recognition of our critical capabilities applied to real-world use cases demonstrates our customer-obsessed business vision and product strategy that is dedicated to helping customers achieve their business goals with CXone."

This Critical Capabilities report states, "There is an increasing propensity for contact center decision makers to consider, and often select, CCaaS offerings as a replacement for less-functional, premises-based solutions", and its recommendations include, "Application leaders for customer service responsible for planning, selecting and deploying contact center applications should anticipate delivering a stronger customer experience by focusing on CCaaS offers that combine multichannel contact center with workforce engagement management and a tight integration to the target CRM customer engagement center software application."

Gartner previously recognized NICE inContact as a Leader in its Magic Quadrant for Contact Center as a Service, North America. NICE inContact was positioned the highest overall for ability to execute.
