BANK HAPOALIM B.M. (the "Bank") is pleased to report that on November 16, 2025, a statement of claim and a motion for class action certification were received, which were filed against the bank and three other banks in the Central District Court. The subject of the application relates to bank checks issued by the defendant banks. It is argued that when such a bank check is returned to the issuing bank by the customer, or expires seven years after it was issued, the issuing bank returns the customer the amount of the check at its par value, without indexation and without such disclosure. The application is to include in the represented group customers to whom a bank check was issued, the check was returned to the bank or expired, and its amount was returned to the customer's account at its par value without interest and linkage.
